VICTORY FOR SHOE MACHINE

Demurrer Sustained in Indictments by Government Under Sherman Law; One Count Remains.

Judge Putnam in the United States District Court in Boston today handed down a decision sustaining the demurrers to indictments found under the Sherman law against five of the officials of the United Shoe Machinery Company in four out of five counts.

This decision practically knocks the bottom out of the government's case against the indicted men. Whether a prosecution will follow on the one count which the trust's lawyer failed to annihilate will rest with Attorney-General Wickersham.

The officials indicted were Sidney W. Winslow, president; and William Barbour, Elmer F. Howe, Edward P. Hurd and George P. Brown. The men were indicted for a violation of the Sherman law for maintaining an alleged unlawful combination in restraint of trade.

Following the indictment a suit for dissolution of the company was filed in the United States Circuit Court on December 12 last. The shoe machinery company's lawyers and others have been busy at Washington for weeks in an attempt to induce the government to let up in the prosecution.

The five counts in the two indictments against the five men were as follows:

Combination in restraint of trade, conspiracy in restraint of trade, monopoly by means of the first two counts, monopoly through patents and conspiracy to monopolize through patents.

All of these counts were eliminated with the exception of the fourth—the charge of monopoly through patents. The reasons given by Judge Putnam for sustaining the demurrers are that there was insufficient law to sustain the counts.

United States District Attorney Frank was out of Boston today and it could not be learned what his next action will be in the case.

Government officials in Boston this afternoon declared that the decision was not as unfavorable to the government's contention as it might appear at first glance. These officials stated that despite the decision the government would proceed with its civil suit to dissolve the United Shoe Machinery Company as a monopoly.

ACCUSER HELD ON CHARGE OF THEFTS

J. J. O'Donoghue of Sparkhill, N. Y., who accuses Chief Collins of Everett of stealing $2200 worth of silks from him, was in Municipal Court accused of stealing the goods himself. He was held in $500 for a hearing on March 5. O'Donoghue appeared in court a week ago as the complainant against Collins. His story was investigated and his arrest followed.

Lawrence Children Appear Before Congress Committee

Companies' Offer of Settlement Rejected by the Strikers

LAWRENCE STRIKERS' CHILDREN PHOTOGRAPHED IN NEW YORK, ON WAY TO WASHINGTON

The children of Lawrence mills strikers are those who today appear before the House Rules Committee in Washington. The young woman in the picture is Miss Josephine Lisa, one of the strike leaders. The men are members of the committee in charge of the children.

Delegation from Mill City Pleads Their Cause Before the Legislators.

WASHINGTON, March 2—In a room where a short time ago Carnegie, Hill and Gary and other kings of finance talked of millions, a group of frightened, poverty-stricken men, women and children testified today before the Rules Committee of the House concerning the horrors of low wages at Lawrence, Mass.

Many labor leaders were among the spectators, including the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor headed by Samuel Gompers, President Golden of the Textile Workers and President Timothy Healy of the Stationary Firemen. With children of the strikers as living illustrations of the effect of life in the mills on the young, the delegation, composed of Commissioner of Police C. F. Lynch, City Solicitor D. J. Murphy, City Messenger Rev. Clark Carter, William M. Stewart, E. J. McCarthy, Acting City Marshal John J. Sullivan and Postmaster Louis J. Cox of Lawrence, accompanied the strikers' committee and "the children of the strike" to the hearing.

Surrounded by Children.

In the delegation is Josephine Lisa, known as the Joan of Arc of the strikers who was imprisoned for resisting the militia at Lawrence.

Surrounded by the children, who came to tell the committee how they were held in riot-ridden Lawrence, Representative Wilson of Pennsylvania was the first witness. He is the author of the resolution to which Representative Gillett of Massachusetts objected on the floor of the House a few days ago.

"Stories have been published," said Wilson, "that the police power of Lawrence was used to prevent the children of strikers from leaving the strike centre. So far as I know, there has never occurred in all the history of trade disputes any condition that have approached or approximated those alleged to exist in Lawrence.

"It was the height of cruelty to prevent parents from sending the children from the strike zone of suffering, starvation and persecution. So far as I know, there was no [illegible] except [illegible] could have been in control at the time the policemen and militiamen forcibly beat back children from the train.

"The difference between continental life and American life is freedom of action, and yet here in Lawrence we have had the basic principles of the base of life in Russia and in countries where the police espionage prevents citizens from going and coming as they please."

Children in Garb of Toil.

Representative Berger brought the boys into the committee room. All of them were the garments of toil. Heavy gee shirts, patched trousers, sweaters and wool caps were the background for the lean faces of the youngsters. One of them wore a new and freshly pressed suit.

"This doesn't look much like a starving child," said one of the spectators, and then it was discovered that Robert, Jr., son of Policeman Henry, had got inked up with his little strikers.

Representative Berger followed Representative Wilson. While Wilson advocated congressional investigation of the killing of strikers in Lawrence, the Socialist member declared that, as horrible as these tragedies are, the vital question for Con-

FREED OF BLAME IN HOTEL DEATH

Chief Justice Bolster of the Municipal Court has issued his report on the inquest of the Revere House fire, in which he discharges no blame for the death of the three women in the fire rests with either the hotel management or the city building department. Judge Bolster said in part that Medical Examiner McGrath examined the bodies of the three women and reported that they were overcome by smoke. In the report Judge Bolster said that the women were either overcome while they were asleep or else they became confused while trying to escape from the burning building. The report further states that the fact that over 100 guests escaped from the hotel during the fire, and that all of these were in practically as dangerous positions as the three women who were burned, would indicate that there was no lack of proper emergency precautions.

Roosevelt Hires Dr. Cook's Press Agent

R. C. Mitchell, Democrat, to Hand Out Political "Gum Drops" on Presidential Trail.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who wants to be President again, got his name mixed up with that of Dr. Cook, the explorer, who said he reached the North Pole, through the appointment of Roscoe Conklin Mitchell by the Colonel as publicity representative of his campaign in this city.

Mr. Mitchell was publicity agent for Dr. Cook when the explorer returned from Denmark, following his announcement of the finding of the Pole, and in that capacity traveled all over the country with the doctor, upon the latter's lecture tour. Mr. Mitchell is a Democrat and comes from North Carolina.

G. O. P. REJECTS PRIMARY PLAN

The Republican State Committee voted in favor of the caucus system of electing delegates to the Chicago convention to choose a nominee of the party for President, instead of the preferential primaries as advocated by Roosevelt and his supporters.

It was voted to hold the State convention in Tremont Temple on April 11 at 10:30 a. m. George Smith, former president of the Chamber of Commerce, who lives in Newton, was selected as chairman of the State convention. Former Gov. Jeremiah Chapin, of Fall River, at the session, was selected as chairman of the committee on resolutions.

The meeting was one of the shortest ever held by the State Committee, lasting but fifteen minutes. Twenty-five of the forty State committeemen were present.

Chairman Charles F. Hatfield, who just returned from a fishing trip at Lake Winnepesaukee, presided.

On motion it was voted to hold the Republican caucuses for the election of delegates to the convention that will select thirty-six delegates to the Chicago convention on April 2. These caucuses will also elect delegates to a State convention, which in turn will elect eight delegates at large.

Ex-Gov. Long May Lead State Fight for Taft

Now Considering Request From the President Through League.

President Taft, through the Taft League in Boston, has requested John D. Long, former Governor and Secretary of the Navy, to take charge of his campaign in Massachusetts against Colonel Roosevelt.

Mr. Long said that he would make his decision known later. There was a feeling that he would accept.

When Colonel Roosevelt attended the Harvard Overseers meeting on Wednesday in Boston Mr. Long took occasion to tell the Colonel that he had made a mistake in coming out as a candidate against Taft.

The relationship between Mr. Long and Colonel Roosevelt has not been cordial since the Spanish-American War, when Long was Secretary of the Navy and Roosevelt was his assistant. At that time Roosevelt wanted to start out the Atlantic fleet in quest of Spaniards before war was declared. After that he went to war at the head of the Rough Riders. All of which did not make a big hit with Long.

Girl Six Years Old Crossing Sea Alone

Father Will Meet Agnes McNulty When She Arrives in Boston from Glasgow.

Six-year-old Agnes McNulty of Glasgow, Scotland, will arrive in Boston on the Allen liner Scotian, after making the trip from her native city unaccompanied.

The little girl will be met at the pier by her father, Ignatius McNulty of No. 761 E. Seventh street, South Boston. He is the business agent of the local Cement, Artificial Stone and Tinsmiths' Workers' Union. He has not seen his daughter since she was five months old.

Agnes' mother died when she was a baby, and her father has been married the second time since coming to this country.

POSTMEN MEASURE ROUTES NEXT WEEK

If you see the postman counting his steps next Monday do not call the police and say he has gone crazy. He is only measuring the length of his route to see how much longer it is this year than last and how many more steps he has to take in order to deliver the mail along the way. A little pedometer is attached to his legs and every step he takes records the distance. All loads of mail carried next week will also be weighed.

204 CASES OF MEASLES.

Measles is epidemic in Boston, and the Board of Health considers a Brighton doctor's improper diagnosis as largely responsible. There were 204 cases of measles reported the past week, and of these cases 100 are in Brighton.

SEAVER AND SHEEHAN GUILTY

Augustus Seaver was found guilty in twenty-four counts, and Patrick Sheehan guilty in four out of eight counts by a jury in the Superior Criminal Court today in connection with forged signatures to nomination papers for Seaver for candidacy for Governor in the last State election.

Seaver and Sheehan were brought before the court following their conviction. Seaver's bail was increased to $5,000 by Judge Chase, in spite of the request of Mr. Webber for a low amount. It had formerly been $1,500. Sheehan's bail was raised from $500 to $1,000. No date for sentence has yet been set. Neither man could find bail immediately.

Seaver was a candidate for Governor before the late election.

There were twenty-four counts in the indictment against Seaver, on all of which he was found guilty. The jury went out at 11:10 yesterday morning, and returned a sealed verdict at 11:15 last night.

The trial had been in progress for over a week.

Seventy Witnesses Sworn.

With Seaver and Sheehan was indicted Dennis Mahoney. When the case was opened Mahoney pleaded guilty, the other two pleading not guilty. He had been arrested at Madison, N. H., after a warrant was issued against him.

Seventy witnesses were sworn at the beginning of the Seaver trial. Assistant District Attorney Weber prosecuted the case and Seaver was defended by Charles Stebbins and Peter Donoghue. Albert J. Conant and Francis J. Harrington appeared for Sheehan.

The indictment of the three men followed statements made by Daniel V. Meikle at a hearing before the State Ballot Law Commission on the Independent nomination papers filed by Seaver. Meikle declared they bore 1,500 forged names. The commission ruled out the papers filed by Seaver.

Told of Alleged Plot.

In the course of the trial sensational testimony was given. Patrolman Patrick Mackesy testified that Sheehan had told him of an alleged plot to "beat Governor Foss" for which Sheehan had received $2,000.

Edward Hanlon told of having been hired to get nomination names for Seaver.

It was testified that Seaver, Sheehan and Mahoney were to divide the $2,000 for "defeating Foss."

RUSH U. S. TROOPS TO PEKIN; REBELS BOMBARD PALACE

PEKIN, March 2.—There was a fresh outbreak in the mutiny here tonight. The palace of Duke Kuei-Hsiang, father of the Dowager Empress, was shelled by artillery. The palace was set afire, and the occupants fled, after which it was looted. Five of the attacking force were killed.

A strong detachment of the American soldiers who have been stationed at Tien Tsin since their arrival from the Philippines was rushed to Pekin this evening. Their mission is to protect the American legation and American compound, which are menaced by the rebels.

Chaos prevails throughout the city as a result of anarchy among the military mutineers. The damage that had been done last night and today brought the estimate of the aggregate loss up to $25,000,000 this evening.

Hundreds of squares of buildings have been burned and the historic market house, one of the ancient landmarks, is in ruins. The gates to the Forbidden City, where the imperial palace is situated, were also burned. President Yuan Shi Kai has troops patrolling the principal streets and cannon have been planted to protect his official residence.

REVOLT OF MANCHUS SPREADING.

The mutiny of Manchu troops is spreading through Northern China and today was in full swing at four places.

The latest uprising was at Pao Ting Fu, seventy miles southwest of Pekin. The garrison there revolted last night, taking possession of the town and putting several civilians to death. Fires were set and part of the town burned.

The other points where the mutineers are either partially or wholly in control are in this city, at Tien Tsin and in Feng Tai.

Rioting continued in the northern part of this city throughout the night.

Refugees fled from this city in great numbers today. Railroad service was still crippled or tied up completely, and virtually all the fleeing residents were compelled to make their way on foot. The legations and foreign compounds are crowded with foreigners, who fear to venture out.

Without even the formality of a trial by court-martial, thirty-five deserters and rioters who had been caught looting were shot today.

Mutineers set more fires at daybreak, hoping they might have further opportunity to loot.

LAWRENCE CHILDREN APPEAR AT CAPITAL

gress to decide is the relation of the American Woolen Company to the strike of its Lawrence operatives.

"The limit of endurance of white men and women has been reached in Lawrence," he said.

Children Tell Stories.

Those who attended the steel hearings could not help but note the contrast in the shifting scenes. Only a short time ago the room was thronged with speculators who came to hear Andrew Carnegie tell how he sold his holdings for $420,000,000. Today the story unfolded was of men and women and children who work long hours for $4 and $6 a week and who are alleged to have been subject to most brutal treatment because they "struck" for more.

All the children show the influence of hard work in tender years, and all are stunted in physical growth. Each bears a careworn face.

Pearl Shinberg, a pretty thirteen-year-old girl, told the committee she worked from 6:45 a. m. till 5:30 p. m. She is a twister and earns from $3.50 to $4 a week.

Boy Supported Family.

John Bordelle, a boy a little more than fourteen, said he was the only one of a family of five able to work. Until the strike began he earned $9.20 a week. Two months' children, a sickly mother and a weak father had to be supported on that. Charles Doogdan, a lad of fourteen, said he earned $5 a week, on which a family existed.

Among the girls in the party was Camilla Trefl, who displayed a scalp burned of hair. She told the committee her hair was caught in a revolving shaft and was torn out by the roots. She said the company did not pay her wages while she was in the hospital for seven months. She said she was forced to support a whole family on her small earnings.

The committee was told of the part the Massachusetts militia men played in the strike by Miss Ines, who displayed a dress she said a bayonet in the hands of a guardsman had torn. She nearly escaped injury, she said, and nor prevented the indignities she charged she suffered at the hands of the militia men.

In his speech Mr Berger said:

"A probe will not only improve the conditions in Lawrence, but in North Adams.

He characterized the fight between the Industrial Workers of the World and the American Federation of Labor as a disgrace, but was of the opinion that this difference between the labor organizations had nothing to do with the strike at Lawrence.

Members of the strike committee were examined by Berger. The first was Samuel Lipson, an employe of the American Woolen Company.

Striker Questioned.

"Why did you go on strike?" asked Berger.

"I went out on strike," the witness replied, "because I was unable to make a living for my wife and children. I am a skilled weaver and the average wage I made was from $9 to $13 a week.

"When we had meat it seemed to us like a holiday. I had to pay $2.20 a week rent and we never had any butter. We lived a kind of mixture of meal and molasses.

"It's a bad thing to feed your stomach," said Berger. "It will get even with you."

Lipson severed the premium system of the American Woolen Company and said the "speeding up" of machines was done more and obtain the 10 per cent. premium is fatal to weaker workers.

Lipson told of the butchering of John Ramey by militiamen, the arrest of 36 Italian operatives who were drenched with water from high pressure hose, when they went to the mills to draw their pay and the bludgeoning of other workers by the police and militia.

Speaking of the march of the Italians to draw their pay, Lipson said:

"They came along in a line; they sang that they were going to get bread for their children; that they were going to get shoes for the bare feet of their babies; that they would get underwear for the infants who were without it, and then a watchman for the plant turned the water on them and they were beaten back."

STRIKERS REJECT SETTLEMENT OFFER BY THE COMPANIES

LAWRENCE, March 2.—The general committee of the American Federation of Labor today formally declined to accept the terms of the mill owners for a settlement of the strike. At a meeting a communication to the position of the organization was formulated and dispatched to the mill owners.

William D. Haywood and the other leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World have taken the same position.

The mill men's offer consists of an increase of 5 per cent. to the operatives. They declare that under no circumstances will they make a greater increase than 5 per cent.

Other Mills in Line.

It was rumored today that four companies of the Ninth regiment would be withdrawn from this city Monday. This was found to be unwarranted.

Practically every mill in Lawrence has followed the example of the American Woolen Company and has posted notices to meet the demands of the strikers. Only one mill employing union operatives has failed to fall into line.

Eleven mills employing 30,000 operatives, on Monday will post notices of general increase of wages amounting to about 5 per cent. These mills are the Pacific, Ayer, Washington and Prospect mills, controlled by the American Woolen Company in Lawrence, and the Atlantic No. 1, Atlantic No. 2, Atlantic Duck, Lawrence and Pemberton mills.

Other mills will announce increases today. They are the Kunhardt, Atlantic, Arlington, Bay State, John B. Stevens, the agent of the Atlantic Mill, stated the following notice would be posted in the mill Monday:

"A tentative schedule of wages involving an increase of rates, whether paid by the hour or by piece, effective on the first pay period beginning March 4.

"It is understood that this schedule is not satisfactory to all of the operatives, but it is believed that it is the most liberal proposition that can be made at this time. It is expected that this schedule will be satisfactory to the operatives generally, and that they will accept it and return to work.

"The original demand for an increase in wages of 15 per cent. must in common justice be withdrawn by those on the strike if possible, the strikers insist. It is believed that the proposition that this stand on the part of the workers will mean the calling of a general strike.

Strikers Are Determined.

The unanimous vote of the strike delegates shows an equal determination on their part to hold on their demands. They have threatened for days that if the men refuse their request they will call a general strike.

The vote of the Central Labor Union delegates was taken after representatives of each branch of the I. W. W. had been considered the other.

The delegates in executive session held a long discussion and the result was a practically unanimous vote to insist on the original demands. If necessary, call out all workers in a general strike.

The meeting was held at No. 184 Broadway, and the session did not last long. The announcement of the strikers decision was made early today.

Haywood urged the continuation of the strike, and his hearers were roused to such a pitch of enthusiasm that they poured out into the street, laughing and shouting, and started a parade of the federation. They were met by three policemen at the corner of Jackson and Common streets, who called for reserves and arrested the crowd.

A parade of four or five hundred strikers and sympathizers was broken up by a force of police after a free-for-all fight that lasted fifteen minutes. Many clubs were freely exercised by the policemen's clubs, following a mass meeting of the strikers which was addressed by William D. Haywood.

Wood and Strikers Met.

At the conference yesterday at the offices of the American Woolen Company, between officials of that company, including President Wood, and a committee of nine strikers, the subject of a 5 per cent. increase, based on fifty-four hours' work, was gone over thoroughly in the conference, and at its close it was stated that the details of what took place would be made public at the regular meeting of the general strike committee in Lawrence at 10 o'clock today.

The company, in treating with the strikers, not only with its own employes, but recognizing by organization whatever. The majority of the company's operatives have better paid class of mill workers, and it is estimated that their wages averaged about $18 a week.

President Wood, of the American Woolen Company said after the meeting at his office: "There is nothing to be said or to say about the conference.

We have offered our employes a large increase in wages as we can possibly afford to do, and negotiations will mean a general increase in wages of 5 per cent. or more."

It is understood that while the minimum increase in wages, based on fifty-four hours' work, given by the American Woolen Company to the operatives of all its mills, wherever situated, is 5 per cent., the average increase will amount to 8 per cent. under the readjustment of wages which goes into effect Monday.

Britain Feels Sting of Great Coal Strike

Hundred Thousand Steel Workers Thrown Out of Work and Many Steamers Held at Berths.

LONDON, March 2.—The United Kingdom today began to feel the first real sting of the national coal strike, for, although it has been in force only forty-eight hours, so small was the supply of coal in store that it has dwindled to the point where the authorities are crippled. One hundred thousand iron and steel workers, chiefly in the Glasgow districts, were thrown out of work today. Several hundred steamers were held up at their berths because they had no coal.

In the Lancashire district most of the textile companies have enough coal for two weeks, but others will go on half time sooner.

It is just dawning on the British people, if not on another second, that this world may be great suffering. King George is urging the ministers to force a settlement, fearing the strike may become international. Already negotiations have been opened with the Continental Union to order a walkout in France and Germany, in the event there is a strong possibility of a strike throughout the United States.

The last quota of miners to go out laid down their tools in Warwickshire today. There were 10,000 of them. Orders for some 1,000,000 tons of coal have been placed in the United States for private and government use.

Shipping throughout south Wales was at a standstill. Practically no coasting or channel ships were moving. The Manchester Ship Canal was deserted. Transatlantic liners are employing firemen and trimmers, and other industries are idle, the mills closing down at noon for lack of coal.

Railroad companies announced today that no serious delays are yet crippled that unless the strike is settled quickly schedules will have to be curtailed.

HUNT LAST OF TAXICAB ROBBERS

NEW YORK, March 2.—The end of the roundup of the taxicab robbers who held up two messengers of the Coal Hill National Bank on February 15, getting $25,000, was expected by the police today in the possible arrest of the man who fired the shot that killed Adolph Stern, 17 years old, messenger of the bank, on Pine street and Sixth avenue, last July, after the robbery of the bank's messengers.

Matteo Arbano, head of the "three brigands" in the taxicab robbery, who robbed the bank messengers of $10,000 on the night, was out most of the night with detectives from the central office. The detectives followed Arbano's car all through many of the lowest dives on the Bowery.

Arbano was promised leniency if he would turn State's evidence when he was snatched at the opportunity. His story of his part in the robbery, which he has told, showed he had been a victim of the gang which he had helped to plan and rob the robbers. After going to Havana with the share of the $10,000 loot, Arbano fell in with confidence men who got $2,400 of his spoils.

Hot Air Explosions Shake Building as Oil Feeds Flames That Sweep Structure.

Half a dozen firemen, trapped in the riddles of a back draught, had narrow escapes from death, early today, during a three-alarm fire which swept through the six-story brick building at No. 210 State street and caused a loss estimated at $40,000.

The building was occupied by the Atlantic Maritime Company, wholesale grocers, and runs through to Nos. 47 and 49 Commerce street.

Several of the crew of Ladder 8, Fort Hill square, were raising a ladder on the Commerce street side when they were enveloped in a sheet of flame which burst from the basement windows. A few had their faces and hands singed, but were dragged to safety.

Hot air explosions shook the building time and again, and the firemen were ordered to leave the lower floors by Chief Mullen.

From cellar to roof the building was a seething furnace within ten minutes after the first alarm was sounded. Quantities of gasoline and other inflammable substances stored in the basement spread the flames, and it took the firemen two hours to bring them under control. The entire block was threatened and the firemen found difficulty in keeping the flames from spreading.

A wind blowing in from the water chilled the firemen and spectators to the marrow. Spray from the pumps froze as fast as it struck the walls of the building and formed a coating of ice over the sidewalks.

The crew of Engine 4, under Captain Riley, had several narrow escapes from being swept from ladders while directing a stream into the windows on the third floor. With their hands so numbed they could barely hold the line, they tied themselves to the rungs of the ladders to escape being swept off into the street by the sheets of flame which burst from the windows above and below them.

Chief Mullen had charge of the firemen on the State street side of the building while Deputy Chief John Grady was in command of those on the Commerce street side. The rapid service by the building proved a valuable asset to the firemen.

De Graff Acquitted of Killing on Barge

Jury, After Arguing All Night, Declares Sailor Not Guilty of Captain Wyman's Murder.

A verdict of "not guilty" was returned today by the jury in the case of William De Graff, charged with murder of Captain Charles D. Wyman of the barge Glendower.

The jury was out 14 hours 25 minutes.

The case went to the jury in the United States District Court yesterday afternoon. The jury came in twice for instructions, the last time being at 9 o'clock last night.

The jury argued all night. At 6.45 this morning it reached an agreement. Word was sent to Judge Putnam. DeGraff was brought into the courtroom from the marshal's office. At 8.07 o'clock the jury returned its verdict.

DeGraff, the seaman defendant, broke down and wept when he heard the words freeing him from the charge of having murdered his captain. On motion of Assistant United States District Attorney Mark Sullivan, DeGraff was immediately released.

Judge Putnam thanked the jurymen, saying the murder was an obscure and mysterious one and that they had done their duty in a manner above that of the average jury.

Captain Charles D. Wyman was found slain in his berth on the barge Glendower on June 9 last. The barge was off Minot's Light. DeGraff was charged with having slain the captain with a hammer. The government maintained that he had quarrelled with the captain and had had opportunity to commit the crime. DeGraff took the stand in his own behalf and denied vigorously every important statement made by government witnesses.

RALLY TONIGHT FOR ROOSEVELT

The national campaign to secure for Theodore Roosevelt the Republican nomination for President starts tonight with a rally in Tremont Temple under the auspices of the Progressive Republicans of Massachusetts. The leaders of the Progressive Republicans in this State plan to work up public sentiment looking to the securing of at least a majority of the State delegation for Colonel Roosevelt.

The speakers at tonight's rally, outside of the Massachusetts Progressives who will plead the cause of Roosevelt, are Senator Moses Clapp of Minnesota, Governor Walter R. Stubbs of Kansas and former Governor Franklin S. Fort of New Jersey.

Colonel Timothy J. Doherty will preside, and all the prominent men in the progressive wing of the Republican party will be in attendance, either on the platform or in the audience.

It is planned by the Roosevelt workers to make tonight's rally such an enthusiastic demonstration that the reception given their candidate by the Massachusetts legislature and Republican politicians will be offset.

When Colonel Roosevelt visited Boston a week ago he talked with some politicians who came to see the candidate, and it is thought that the rally to be held tonight in Tremont Temple is the first result of that visit.

ROOSEVELT PLANS TO GET DELEGATES FROM THE SOUTH

OYSTER BAY, L. I., March 2.—Colonel Roosevelt, recovering from the siege of "Gloom" that was inaugurated after his Boston visit, today chirked up and talked freely of his plans for the campaign.

One significant fact became apparent. It is considered that President Taft's greatest strength in the matter of delegates lies below Mason and Dixon's line.

Colonel Roosevelt declares that he himself, in 1908 and previously, not only made no efforts to secure delegates in the South by patronage, but actually opposed the selection of delegates pledged to himself for the 1908 convention; and that further, more, the present situation appears to be such that stern measures should be at once taken to prevent the President from taking advantage of the Federal patronage to clinch the South.

The plans of friends indicated that the first fight on the floor of the convention would come on the question of seating the Southern delegates.

Meanwhile, the Colonel intends to stay at Oyster Bay, chop wood and saw a little too, perhaps—and his campaign as quietly as possible. Several of the Colonel's friends, including William Allen White, dropped in to call.

Governor Stubbs of Kansas launched the Roosevelt boom in New York in an address at Krueger's Auditorium. Governor Hiss was prevented from speaking by illness.

TAFT ALARMED BY ROOSEVELT'S FIGHT IN SOUTH

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The alarming news that Colonel Roosevelt is planning not only to defeat Taft in his own State but actually to invade the South, recapture some delegates and lead the fight against the President with characteristic vigor, made all the friends of the President sit up and take notice today.

On receipt of this information they began suddenly to remember that one of the office holders upon whom the President is counting for re-nomination are Roosevelt appointees. The colonel naturally knows them all by their first names. He knows their records and their relations and the number of children they have. A large number of them have signed photographs of the colonel hung upon their office walls. All of which can promptly point to letters signed by the colonel's own hand.

If Roosevelt takes it into his head to go on a stump through the South he is liable to get a large number of these people. The Taft boomers waked up to this possibility today, and it is said that they were disquieted is to state the case very conservatively.

TWO MEN HURT BY EXPLOSION

William Barber of Saugus and Thomas Enos of No. 198 East Third street, East Cambridge, were knocked unconscious by flying debris and seriously injured, machinery was wrecked and several thousand dollars' worth of damage resulted, when the condenser in the boiler room of the A. H. Davenport Furniture Company at Cambridge street, East Cambridge, exploded early today.

About 150 men were at work in the building. There were half a dozen in the basement. Suddenly, the condenser, which is located back of the boilers, burst, and in an instant the basement was filled with hissing steam.

Fragments of the steel condenser flew in every direction, ripping away pipes and furnishings of the basement. The two men injured were hit by flying debris, and others received slight scratches.

Every window on the first floor was wrecked by the impact of the explosion. The machinery in the engine room was strained and thrown out of gear. The fire fighting apparatus was also destroyed.

The factory of the Davenport people stands several stories high.

TOBACCO-CHEWING DOG'S OWNER SOUGHT

SPRINGFIELD, March 2.—Boston & Maine railroad officers are looking for the owner of a thoroughbred Boston bulldog which answers to the name Teddy, chews tobacco with obvious relish and holds its head over a cuspidor when it sneezes. The dog was left in the baggage room at the railroad station a few days ago by a resident who came to Springfield on the Alpha Delta Phi special. The owner of the dog was last seen with a party of collegians who left the city singing lustily, "I don't know where I'm going, but I'm on my way."

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Incubators of Disease

The dangers of infection from breathing the dust and germs that are carried into the schoolroom by the shoes of hundreds of children have been a source of no little anxiety to the health authorities. Microbes of all sorts of infectious diseases find their easiest entry into the nasal passages and bronchial tubes of the pupils with the very air they breathe.

Slight coughs or inflamed throats, if not given prompt attention, often develop into serious maladies, and tuberculosis finds a ready breeding place upon the sensitive membranes of the children's lungs.

Parents should never neglect the slightest symptoms of a cold in their children. A few drops of virgin oil of pine on a lump of sugar or in connection with a mixture of glycerine and whiskey is said by health authorities to be one of the most certain cures for troubles of this character and a good means of preventing the development of disease germs.

The genuine virgin oil of pine is prepared only in the laboratories of the Pinex Chemical Co., Cincinnati, O., who guarantee its freshness and purity. It may be secured at any drug store in half-ounce vials, the most convenient size for home use.

SLATER SALES MAY BE PRIVATE

The sale of $4,500,000 stock in the Slater mills by the trustees of the Horatio N. Slater estate, which has been approved by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, is to be private unless Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater, the widow, objects.

In the event of Mrs. Slater objecting to the private sale of the stock there will be a public sale in April, 1913. In either case, Mrs. Slater, as guardian of her four children, Esther, Horatio N., Mabel H. and William M. H., will lose control of the big mill properties in Webster which were founded and fostered by her late husband.

Mrs. Slater fought the effort of the trustees of the estate to sell out the controlling interest of the Slater family in the big mills, because she wanted the business as an incentive to her boys to make a career rather than to pass their time idly. Living on the income of the estate. Her family pride also impelled Mrs. Slater to protest vigorously against the proposed action of the trustees.

A majority of the Supreme Court decided against the sentiment, claiming that it should yield to business judgment, while the minority report strongly advised against the selling of the Slater interests.

The dissenting opinion was written by Judge Morton, and his opinion is concurred in by Judge Braley. This minority opinion asserts that if the sale is made it should not be put into effect by the present trustees, all of whom it criticises, and calls attention to evidence of negotiations made by one of them with Kidder, Peabody & Company for the sale of the business to a corporation to be formed, which if carried out would result in his getting a salary of $25,000 a year as general manager.

Judge Morton said that it appeared during the hearing that one of the trustees was totally incapacitated from attending to his duties, that two more of another had been so taken up by public duties during the last two years that he had been able to give little or no attention to the affairs of the trust.

"It would seem," says his honor, "that if, with an estate of upward of $14,000,000 to be finally divided among them, the beneficiaries, because of family pride or because they believe that the investment is a good one, desire that the securities should be kept and the business carried on as it has been, their wishes should be respected. They can amply afford any loss which they may sustain. No rule of law requires that the securities should be sold and the business disposed of. The case is not one for the application of the rules of law relating to the investment of trust estates.

"Justice and fair dealing require that the petitioners should be held to the agreement of 1906, and should be compelled to carry it out in good faith. That agreement was intended as a final settlement of all differences between the parties."

Nurse's Story of Dismissal Scores Waltham Hospital

MISS HODGSON, DISMISSED WALTHAM NURSE

Miss Evangeline Hodgson, who refused to longer serve in the tubercular ward of the hospital, declares her own health was imperilled by unsanitary conditions in the ward.

Miss Hodgson Declares Conditions in Tubercular Ward Are Unsanitary.

Miss Evangelin Hodgson, the young nurse who was expelled from the Waltham Hospital for refusing to serve at night in the tubercular ward, told how she was given what was termed out of the hospital. She will report the facts to the State Board of Health.

"The reason for my dismissal," said Miss Hodgson, "was that I refused to work in the tubercular ward at night because of the unsanitary and unhygienic conditions there.

"The ward is not properly equipped for the treatment of tubercular cases, and I mean to let the State Board of Health know it.

"The ward is composed of small rooms equipped with beds—usually two beds in a room—but there is no individual dishes for meals. There is no sun parlor or porch of any kind. So long as the patients are in bed they get on very well. But when they get up they have nothing to do but sit in chairs in the same room and breathe the same old air.

Complained to Doctor.

"But the patients live in hours when too nervous their situation with that of the night nurse. There is only one nurse to stay except in the kitchen, which consists of only a single stitch-backed chair and an iron sink. What sort of place is that for a girl to have to stay in?

"Besides, I had already done three weeks of that work, and I understood that that was the limit of the requirement.

"Oh, the other members of the class feel the same as I do. I do not think they not have the nerve to say so. You know they sent a petition to Dr. Worcester, the head of the training school, protesting against the conditions in the tubercular ward at night. I hear that Dr. McCormick, the head of the hospital, says he has never seen the petition. If that is so, my own opinion is that it was destroyed.

"I understand that politics has something to do with the state of affairs at the hospital. You know the hospital itself is a private institution, but the city of Waltham has refused to build any sort of hospital for the treatment of tubercular cases, saying that the best they could do was to pay a certain amount for each tubercular patient. The result is that the ward, which was originally only used for new year, is crowded, and the hospital authorities would do anything than they absolutely have to to help the patients. They think they can't afford to.

Says Conditions Are Bad.

"I remember one case where here were two men in the same room in the tubercular ward, one of whom was spitting blood at any moment. The other was kept awake for two nights, and thereafter slept in a wheel chair in the hall.

"The conditions, you will see, are bad for both patients and nurses. I am willing to say frankly that I was thinking of my own health when I refused to serve. I felt that the conditions were too much for my health, and so I declined to submit myself to them longer."

Miss Hodgson came from Detroit and spent a year in hospital work in Philadelphia before she came to Waltham. She left the work in Philadelphia because of her health, but soon felt the call of her profession and entered the training school at Waltham.

She was president of the junior class there, which is the second-year class, and gave all its time to hospital work.

Dr. Cornelius G. McCormick, president of the board of trustees of the Waltham Hospital, referring to the dismissal of Miss Hodgson, said today:

"Miss Hodgson was a member of the junior class of the Waltham Training School for Nurses, and her training had not so far advanced that she was an expert in tuberculosis or in the necessary sanitary arrangements of tuberculosis patients. The physicians in the tuberculosis ward know what is required in the care of the patients, and everything is so arranged that they will receive the best possible treatment.

"The reason for Miss Hodgson's dismissal was necessary for the good of the training school. She was assigned to a certain station and she refused to do the work. As a result her expulsion was the only course for the officers to pursue. Up to the present misunderstanding on her part as to what her duties were, she was in good standing. She was competent, but refused to be advised."

Taft Off to Attend Howells Banquet

President Will Stay in New York Just Long Enough for Dinner to the Writer.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—President Taft left at noon today for New York to attend the banquet given tonight in honor of George Harvey to William Dean Howells, the novelist, in honor of his seventy-fifth birthday.

Friends Say Gertrude Bryan Seeks Divorce

Star in "Little Boy Blue" Married Member of Same Company Two Years Ago in Chicago.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Among the close friends of Miss Gertrude Bryan, who is starring in "Little Boy Blue," at the Lyric Theatre, it was reported today that the dainty little actress had brought an action for divorce from Harry Burgess, who was in the road company with her playing "The Merry Widow" two years ago in Chicago.

It was only a short time after the wedding that Cupid decided he was in the right house, but the wrong door, and fled. It is said there was a pleasant agreement for divorce. They respected each other and all that, but love in a road company, with the wife making a hit night after night—and a pretty wife, at that—seemed to get on Burgess' nerves or on Miss Bryan's.

Killed Trying to Recover His Hat

Employe on New Subway Train Falls to Death on Cambridge Bridge.

The first fatality of the new Cambridge subway occurred at 8:34 a. m. today, when James E. Quinn, twenty years of age, living at No. 4 Buchanan place, Roxbury, employed as a brakeman by the Boston Elevated, was killed under the wheels of a train crossing the new Cambridge bridge toward the entrance to the subway.

Quinn was acting as a brakeman on an outward bound practice train. When the train reached about the centre of the bridge a gust of wind blew Quinn's hat off. In trying to catch it he fell off the train, going between the wheels, and was instantly killed.

The train was stopped and the body extricated and taken aboard the train to Harvard square, where it was turned over to the Cambridge police. The body is at Litchfield's undertaking rooms.

Quinn was the only support of a family of five. His father died last April. He lived with his mother, Mrs. Mary Quinn, and two brothers and two sisters, at No. 4 Buchanan place.

Quinn worked for the Boston Elevated but a few months. He left home today, telling his mother to have dinner ready at 11 o'clock, as he would have but half an hour in which to eat. His younger brother, Michael, is ill in bed.

Oh! You Beautiful Boots.

You might as well make up your mind right now; SHE'S bound to have them WHITE BOOTS.

She'd like to know why she shouldn't, unless she's married the King of Brutes."

She knows what she wants like all Friend Wives do. The cost can be what it may.

She's due for a pair of those high, white "kicks." You might as well hold your say.

You gotta come through for the white boot price if you bust into the rent, eh, even if you hair-pin the baby's bank like many another "gent."

And, when you produce, don't make any yelp or say that white boots won't last.

They'll last till they go and you can buy more till the white boot style is past.

The husbands can think and think what they please regarding those high, white "kicks."

But all that they think, so far as effect, will all be the same "as nix."

The style is for women to wear white boots and, if you don't like 'em white. That's YOUR misfortune but you don't suppose it alters the case a mite?

Every woman will have white boots this Spring if she has to trim over her last Summer's hat to get the price.

The manufacturers are making 'em as fast as they can. The style-makers have said: "White boots are it." The women will follow the styles and there you are.

The boots are to be high, as well as white. Some run to sixteen buttons. An interesting reason is given for having the boots so high. The manufacturers say that, when the women began to hobble their skirts and wear them shorter, a call came in for higher boots. Evidently the shorter the skirt the higher the boot. The cloth makers lost on it but the boot makers win. Apparently it makes no difference to the hosiery factories at all.

Shoe dealers and makers say white is a happy color, that people wear it when they feel cheerful, especially in Summer. The high white boot is sweeping the country. Even in hot weather down South women are buying the high ones to replace white oxfords, slippers and other low-cuts.

The white boots can be cleaned, the same as gloves. Another argument advanced for them by the shoe trade writers is that the women will insist on clean streets so their snowy boots shall not be soiled. Thus the fashions in footwear will make for better municipal administration. Thanks!

BELIEVER IN CAT'S SOUL IS HELD SANE

NEW YORK, March 2.—Miss Maria L. Campbell, who asserted that her cat had a soul and that the spirit of her friend long dead, lived with her in her home, was possessed of sufficient faculties to make a valid will disposing of her $2,000,000 estate, a decision of surrogate Schindelheim Fowler. The surrogate dismissed a suit brought by a number of Miss Campbell's relatives contesting the will.

MENINGITIS FIGHT STIRS LOUISVILLE

She will be sentenced after the trial of the other defendants in the case, who went to trial today.

These other defendants are Annie M. Read and Mary A. O'Neill, who are charged with manslaughter, and Dr. John D. Ferguson of Manchester, who is charged with being an accessory.

The jury was selected today and is as follows:

George Feather, foreman, Frank E. Alden, Joseph C. Malloney, Hyman Rogers, James McPherson, John B. Whittaker, John H. Dalton, Leonard J. Berlo, Ambrose T. Walsh, Dennis J. Manning, Charles W. Ruell, Thomas F. McPartlin.

Court then adjourned until Monday.

Lineman Killed by Fall as Pole Snaps

Elevated Employe Tumbles 40 Feet Onto Jagged Rocks When Ladder's Support Fails.

Alexander McLellan, a lineman employed by the Boston Elevated Railway, was killed instantly today when a pole against which was propped the ladder on which he was at work repairing wires on Southampton street, near the North Bay bridge, snapped, throwing him headlong on jagged rocks.

McLellan was fifty-two years old and lived at No. 321 Bunker Hill street, Charlestown.

The pole was about half the size of those used by the telephone company, and was found to be decayed at the base. Across the top were slung feed wires connecting with the Elevated system.

Where McLellan was at work the ground falls several feet below the street level and is rocky. When the pole gave way he tumbled headlong on sharp ledges on the rocks.

The body was taken to the City Hospital morgue, where Medical Examiner Magrath will perform an autopsy.

NEW FIGHT TO FREE SPENCER

SPRINGFIELD, March 2.—The second fight to save Bertram G. Spencer from the electric chair began here today before Judge John C. Crosby in the Hampden County Superior Court. Spencer came into court looking thin and nervous. He wore a new suit.

Lawyers Stapleton and Young argued a motion for a new trial immediately after the verdict was recorded, but it was overruled by Judge Crosby. They then filed a long list of exceptions. Judge Crosby has them still in his possession, no action having been taken on them yet. The present motion for a new trial is on the grounds of newly discovered evidence.

Affidavits of Thomas Graham, a prisoner at Deer Island, who met Spencer at the Bridgewater Insane Hospital during the latter's confinement there, and of Timothy Goulding, Felix Golding and Patrick J. Culhane, prisoners in the State prison, are contained in the new evidence.

The three State prisoners are said to have conversed with Horace St. John, alias Edwin R. Bell, the convict who was brought here for the Commonwealth to say that Spencer told him he was faking insanity while confined at Bridgewater. Their testimony, it is said, indicates that Bell had a grudge against Spencer.

No Room for Idlers, Says Home Made Lawyer at Fifty-Six

Moses Steuer, Who Couldn't Read at 32, Tells How He Won

Judge's Praise Inspired Clothing Dealer to Tackle Study of Law.

Don't dodge duty.
When you're right, fight.
Never stop studying.
Don't carry legal burdens home.
Don't carry quarrels outside of court.
Keep your mind and body healthy.
Don't smoke, chew, drink or stay out late.
Devote 99 per cent. of time working—1 per cent. to pleasure.
Make people love you; if that fails make them fear you.
Don't be dishonest.—Moses H. Steuer's Ten Commandments for Lawyers.

Unable to read or write at thirty-two.

Admitted to the Suffolk bar as a full-fledged lawyer at fifty-six.

These two sentences sum up the self-educational feat performed by Moses H. Steuer of No. 20 Rockland street, Roxbury, which is all the more remarkable when it is considered that he engaged in other lines of business meanwhile, supported a wife and two daughters in comfort and acquired property in the bargain.

Mr. Steuer has had a career that smacks of the fiction order. He has been a miner, grocer, salesman, dealer in clothing and furnishings and a constable.

Incidentally he has not infrequently figured as counsel for himself and his wife in family litigation.

It was his experience in his first court case that inspired him to become a lawyer. He is a living example of what a man with pluck and ability can accomplish unaided and from a humble start in this country.

DAUGHTERS STEUER HAS BROUGHT UP IN COMFORT AS HE STUDIED.

The large photograph is of Miss Helene C. Steuer, and the other of her sister, Miss Jeanette Steuer.

Inspiration for Youngsters.

His case ought to be an inspiration to the younger generation. Mr. Steuer's name was among the candidates who passed the bar examinations, as announced a few days ago.

It was Judge Pierce, sitting in the first jury session of the Superior Court, April 4, 1902, who instilled a legal ambition into Mr. Steuer, which promises to make him an aggressive and successful practitioner in Suffolk County.

He is starting out, lacking four years of three-score, far better equipped and with as great enthusiasm as the youngest graduate of a law school.

"Hard?" reiterated Mr. Steuer, in his well-furnished parlor in Roxbury. "Why, no, I found it fun—a regular pastime. I love law. Have since boyhood. Always had sort of a legal mind, or at least friends kept telling me so. But when I landed in this country thirty-five years ago, and even up to very recent years, I never dreamt I could be one.

What a Man Can Do.

"Only goes to show what a man can do in this free land if he has the desire. College education is a splendid thing, but a man, young or old, shouldn't feel discouraged or hold back if he hasn't happened to get a chance at a college course.

"Opportunities for education are too numerous for that. There is no room for idlers or grouches.

"But I'm off the track a little. I started to tell you I got the law bee. Judge Pierce is my sponsor. I had a clothing and gents' furnishing store at No. 1963 Washington street, or at least my wife did. One day, back in 1902, Deputy Sheriff Robert E. Maguire invaded the premises with a writ of replevin on some hats.

"He made a fuss and wanted to spread the hats all over the floor and appraise them. I brought a return writ for trespass. In the middle of the litigation my lawyer threw up his hands.

Won His First Case.

"I jumped in and acted as my wife's counsel. You can imagine my nerve when I could only read very little print, and couldn't read handwriting at all. But I knew I was right.

"After all the fundamental basis of law is commonsense. At any rate that was my standard. Well, I got a verdict of $425, which was a profit of $125 as the hats were only worth $300 and $50 costs.

"I had an earlier experience which opened my eyes some concerning legal matters and methods. When I started to erect the building at No. 1963-65 Washington street I had trouble over a permit.

"My counsel told me I would have to allow $1,000 fee for graft. Well, perhaps I didn't pitch into the Building Department. I went out and got all the books and pamphlets bearing on building laws that I could lay my hands on. I learned them by heart and I could read printed matter by that time. Have most of them tucked in a closet here now.

"I told my lawyer I wouldn't pay a cent for privileges bestowed upon a citizen by law, and I didn't. I called the attention of Mayor Hart to my plight. He told me to put my complaint in writing. I did with difficulty and assistance. Well, I got my permit and started a few reforms in the department.

"This reading I did gave me an insight into certain legal matters. The two lawyers against me in my wife's case had a great laugh over an illiterate man of my race trying to oppose them.

"I remember when opposing counsel showed me a written pamphlet I had to get him to read the handwriting. It was beyond me.

"I remember, too, being coached the night before by a lawyer friend as to how to address the jury, but when the time came I got stage fright. But as I watched the other lawyers cross-examine I got a cue.

"I resolved on starting my questions where they left off instead of following the custom of asking first the name, age, address, etc. And do you know I caught the witnesses off their guard.

Won Praise of Judge.

"In the argument I scratched my head for a minute, not knowing what to say, and then a happy idea struck me.

"'Mr. Foreman and gentlemen of the jury,' said I; 'there is an old saying that the lawyer who defends himself has a fool for a client. In what a pitiful plight, then, do you behold your humble servant, a layman fighting for himself and wife.'

"I saw I made a hit, and then I drove it home as hard as I could. I guess I must have made a showing, because some of my friends wanted to carry me out of the courthouse. One friend said he'd pay for my education in law if I would agree to come into his office.

"It was Judge Pierce's kindness that capped the climax. I shall never forget the tribute he paid me in summing up. See, I have framed it here, as excerpt from the court stenographer's official transcript of the proceedings. Said Judge Pierce, as you can see for yourself:

Complimented By Judge.

"'In this case Bessie Steuer says that Robert E. McGuire entered upon her premises situated upon Washington street on the 30th day of March, 1899, wrongfully, and that he remained with his servants and agents wrongfully in that store for a period of twenty-four hours, and that as a result of that wrongful conduct she has suffered harm, and this plaintiff asks you to say how much that harm is and to give her damages for it.'

"Now comes the interesting paragraph: 'I OUGHT TO SAY AT THE BEGINNING OF THIS CASE, IN COMPLIMENT TO HER HUSBAND, MOSES STEUER, THAT IT SEEMS TO ME, AND I THINK YOU THINK, THAT WHEN MOSES STEUER WENT INTO THE HAT AND CLOTHING BUSINESS A GOOD LAWYER AND A VERY ABLE ADVOCATE WAS LOST. WHATEVER MAY HAVE BEEN HIS SUPPOSED MISFORTUNES IN THE LOSS OF COUNSEL, I AM QUITE SURE THAT THERE ARE VERY FEW ATTORNEYS AT THIS BAR WHO COULD HAVE TRIED THE CASE ANY BETTER OR HAVE PRESENTED IT TO YOU ANY CLEARER THAN HE HAS DONE.'

Read By Night; Worked By Day.

"It is needless to add that I pondered a lot over His Honor's remarks. From that out I determined to educate myself and study law. I read night and day, whenever my business would permit.

"I used to get hold of legal documents and laboriously copy them upon long sheets of brown wrapping paper when I ran a store in Court street.

"Then for two years I attended the Y. M. C. A. law school. Too much cannot be said in praise of that institution. There I was a Hebrew applying for admission to a Christian institution. And what did they do? Why generously suspend the rules to let me in. I couldn't take the oath you know, but they don't care there anything about race or creed or color. Their work is a work for humanity. I couldn't expect kinder treatment.

Unable to Write.

"But there was one humorous feature, though I didn't so regard it at the time. I could think and spout law, but I couldn't write it.

"Three times my instructor gave me low marks, and when the faculty asked why he told them he did it purposely to develop my knowledge of English.

"That's where I am somewhat handicapped today. I need a larger vocabulary. I can think ten times as fast and twenty times as much as I can write, and I'm far from an orator yet, but I can talk all right when it comes to citing law.

"When I'm compelled to resort to my own vocabulary I find it harder. You see I have imbibed the lingo of miners and salesmen and others and mixed with legal verbiage it conflicts. I have hard work dropping it.

"I was born of Orthodox parents in Galeshia, Austria, in 1856. I landed in New York when twenty-one. Myself and a party of other countrymen were offered jobs in the Ely copper mines in Vermont.

FOR FREE SUGAR AND INCOME TAX

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The Democratic caucus of the House of Representatives has unanimously adopted the following legislative program:

SUGAR—A bill placing sugar on the free list. This will eliminate $52,000,000 a year in customs revenue, but will reduce the price of sugar to the consumer a cent and a half a pound, or $107,000,000 a year.

INCOME TAX—A bill imposing an excise tax of 1 per cent. a year, on all net annual incomes of more than $5,000. This is expected to increase the national revenue by $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 a year.

In spite of objection made by Judge Bartlett of Georgia, Chairman Underwood of the Ways and Means Committee applied the whip and pushed the income tax measure through the caucus by unanimous vote.

"We simply took the corporation tax law and rewrote it to include individuals and copartnerships," Underwood said of the bill. "The bill, to illustrate, simply means that I, whose business is that of a member of Congress, will pay to the government 1 per cent. of my salary income over $5,000. The salary of a Congressman is $7,500. I would, therefore, pay an excise tax of $25 a year."

The President of the United States, should the proposed measure become a law, would pay 1 per cent. on $70,000, or $700, his salary being $75,000.

Through free raw sugar the Democrats hope to reduce the price of sugars about one and one-half cents per pound and relieve the American consumer of an annual burden of $107,000,000.

Of the total tax paid by consumers of sugar, $2,000,000 goes through the custom houses to the national treasury and $57,000,000 is collected by manufacturers and refiners in differential duties. Under the new bill all differentials on raw sugars are eliminated.

The proposed income tax on individuals and copartnerships is an extension of the one per cent. excise tax placed last year on the net incomes of corporations. The constitutionality of the corporation tax law was upheld by the Supreme Court.

Smoke of Herbs Cures Catarrh

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way and It Costs Nothing to Try.

This preparation of herbs, leaves, flowers and berries (containing no tobacco or habit-forming drugs) is either smoked in an ordinary clean pipe or smoking tube, and by drawing the medicated smoke into the mouth and inhaling into the lungs or sending it out through the nostrils in a perfectly natural way, the worst case of Catarrh can be eradicated.

It is not unpleasant to use, and at the same time it is entirely harmless, and can be used by man, woman or child.

Just as Catarrh is contracted by breathing cold or dust and germ-laden air, just so this balmy antiseptic smoking remedy goes to all the affected parts of the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs. It can readily be seen why the ordinary treatments, such as sprays, ointments, salves, liquid or tablet medicines fail—they do not and can not reach all the affected parts.

If you have catarrh of the nose, throat or lungs, choking, stopped-up feeling, colds, catarrhal headaches; if you are given to hawking and spitting, this simple yet scientific treatment should cure you.

An illustrated book which goes thoroughly into the whole question of the cause, cure and prevention of catarrh will, upon request, be sent you by Dr. J. W. Blosser, 210 Walton street, Atlanta, Ga.

He will, also, mail you five days' free treatment. You will at once see that it is a wonderful remedy, and as it only costs one dollar for the regular treatment, it is within the reach of everyone. It is not necessary to send any money—simply send your name and address and the booklet and free trial package will be mailed you immediately.

Corbett's Chat

He Refers to Milk, and Compliments some of the Enterprising People of Dover, N. H., Gardner, Mass., also of Uxbridge and Elsewhere.

CORBETT

Today I will speak about milk. I admit I know precious little about farm life or farm products or cattle, nevertheless "milk" is my topic. I have not looked into this subject to any extent, yet I feel constrained to state that so far as my research and observation and what little investigation I have made, figures; that is, to condense it all, to give an off-hand opinion, the best thing I have discovered on milk is cream!

But business is business, and I want to speak about some enterprising people in the business world. Take Dover, N. H., for instance, a beautiful place, with the good, old New England home associations and atmosphere, makes you glad you are living, and you feel like shouting: "Dover Is All Right!"

Mayor Dwight Hall, elected twice by the people, is a native of Dover, a graduate of Dartmouth College, a counsellor at law by profession, and highly esteemed. Honorable W. J. Chadwick, city treasurer, has filled his position since 1897, is capable and courteous—the right man in the right place. The postal facilities are in good condition, thanks to John T. Welch, postmaster, who is on his fourth term. Post-office receipts here have nearly doubled since Mr. Welch was appointed in 1898.

It is a pleasure to refer to the Twin State Gas and Electric Company, because the management lighten up the gloom, as it were, and does things worth while. Its Dover plant is well-equipped, new and modern, and the business for the last five years has increased some 40 per cent., which conclusively shows that the people fully appreciate what is being done for them in the way of efficient service, and low cost of same. The above named company also supplies electricity in Rochester, Gonic, Somersworth and Salmon Falls, N. H., and at Berwick, North Berwick, South Berwick and Lebanon, Me. The Twin State Gas and Electric Company is controlled by the National Light, Heat and Power Company of New York City, of which I. L. Meloon is the able general manager. His brother, W. G. Meloon, is manager of the Dover division of the Twin State Company, and his ability is fittingly demonstrated by the manner in which he has pushed the company's business in Dover. George G. Welch, assistant local manager, has been connected with the company eighteen years, which fact speaks for itself. Thus, briefly, it is seen that the citizens of Dover are supplied with gas and electricity at a minimum cost, and are to be congratulated!

The financial institutions are solid and progressive and a credit to Dover. The Strafford National Bank, founded in 1803, has a capital of $200,000 and a surplus of $250,000. Its deposits have grown from $100,000 to $700,000. Customers are accorded every accommodation consistent with modern business principles. Its president, E. R. Brown, has filled the important office forty-five years, and is well and favorably known in banking circles. He is a direct descendent of the Brown family of Providence, R. I., distinguished on account of educational and financial resources. C. B. Cartland is the capable cashier. He has been associated with this bank many years.

The Strafford Savings Bank was incorporated in 1823, and has a good record. Its deposits in 1824 amounted to $2,288, while now, as per statement in January, the deposits are over $6,737,000. Deposits made by mail or express receive careful attention. One dollar or more opens an account. E. R. Brown is president. Daniel Hall and A. G. Whittemore, vice-presidents; H. W. Brown, secretary and treasurer. This bank has over 11,600 open accounts. All deposits made on or before the first business day of the month draw interest from the first day of that month. Dividends are payable in July and January.

The Dover Co-Operative Bank is a benefit to depositor and borrower, and is therefore a financial institution that should have the hearty co-operation of all classes. People of limited means are favored by this bank's operative plan, which will bear the closest investigation. Write for particulars. J. Frank Seavey is president, William K. Chadwick, treasurer, and G. D. Barrett, secretary.

The Merchants' National Bank, established in 1900, has a capital of $100,000, surplus of $50,000, and deposits of some $300,000. This bank from its inception has met with public favor and support. Dudley L. Furber is president, Charles C. Goss, cashier.

The Merchants' Savings Bank, strong and conservative, is meeting with deserved success. John W. Jewell is president, and Charles C. Goss is treasurer. Mr. Goss has a pleasing personality and is an able financier.

You should be in H. Melnick's shoes. He deals in them, also boots and rubbers, at his popular store. Bargains are in order there every day.

When you have your appetite with you and wish good food, like mother provided, be sure to visit the ladies' and gentlemen's dining room at Leighton's Hotel; G. I. Leighton, proprietor.

For twelve years H. C. Ingalls & Co., dealers in pianos and musical merchandise, have been hustling here. Also sell Boston and Dover tickets. The Sea Grill, conducted by Mrs. C. B. Ingall is O. K.

Enterprising B. M. Farnham, dealer in delicious ice cream and confectionery, also sells graphophones and supplies at moderate cost.

The M. & M. Bakery (Marquett & McManus, proprietors), is a very sanitary establishment. Quality is an important factor here. Parties furnished with salads, cakes, confectionery, etc., promptly and on favorable terms.

At her pleasant art needlework parlors, Mrs. R. H. Gardner is showing exclusive designs and novelties sure to please the fair sex. She gives lessons in needlework and sells goods in Dover or elsewhere.

We pass this way but once; death is inevitable. Those who join the silent majority are cared for by Tasker & Chesley, funeral directors and licensed embalmers.

Kerwin & Shannon, the shoe dealers, do an extensive business; conduct special sales and have stores elsewhere. D. L. Smith is Dover manager.

W. H. Vickery & Son, prescription pharmacists, have a complete stock of drugs, etc. Vickery's Headache Powders sent by mail upon application.

Gardner, Mass.

Then there is Gardner, one of the Bay State's thrifty communities, a good place to live in the year 'round.

The Gardner Gas, Fuel and Light Company is certainly with the people. Of late the company has spent thousands of dollars for improvements. Seven miles of new mains have been laid. The gas is of a superior quality and efficiency. This company is controlled by C. D. Parker & Co., bankers, of Boston. John A. Dunn is president, James A. Stiles, Esq., treasurer, Charles B. Adams, assistant treasurer, and Paul B. Webber, of Boston, is assistant manager. A. A. Laughton, local superintendent, is a young man of ability and pleasing address.

The Gardner Electric Light Company gives efficient and satisfactory service. This enterprising company makes a feature of supplying electric light in the homes at a reasonable cost, and is in a position to furnish power for manufacturing concerns. Thatcher B. Dunn is president, Malcolm G. Chace, vice-president, Francis S. Whittemore, treasurer, J. D. Whittemore, manager. The company was organized twenty-three years ago, and is well equipped with modern appliances and facilities to meet the requirements of patrons, and an ever-increasing business.

George J. Corsiglia, the enterprising manufacturer of delicious ice cream and pure confectionery, the sort we all want, sells same at wholesale and retail. Mr. Corsiglia has been engaged in business some five years and attends strictly to the wants of patrons in Gardner and nearby places—in fact his out-of-town trade is quite an item. If it is a birthday party, a banquet or other social occasion, order your ice cream and sherbets of Corsiglia.

The Pine Hurst Steam Laundry has just opened with C. G. Rose, proprietor, in charge. Mr. Rose comes from New York City, where he has had an extended experience, being superintendent of the Bellevue Hospital laundry, and at the head of other laundries. Mr. Rose understands his business, and the people of Gardner are fortunate in having this modern laundry.

The Gardner Savings Bank, organized in 1868, occupies a handsome building, comparatively new, and has met with signal success. John D. Edgell, president, has been with the bank from the first, its first treasurer, which position he held some forty years. Francis S. Whittemore, treasurer, has been associated with the bank twenty-three years, becoming treasurer in May, 1910.

The First National Bank was chartered in 1865, and as per December statement has resources of over $1,000,000. Louis E. Carlton, president, is also president of the Heywood Brothers & Wakefield Co.; Amasa B. Bryant, cashier, has been with this bank seventeen years, the last seven filling present position; J. Myron Moore, assistant cashier, has been with the bank twenty-seven years.

The Gardner Auto Company, J. F. and C. J. Parker, proprietors, are agents for the celebrated Ford car in Gardner and in nine nearby towns. Furnish accessories and make repairs.

At the well-equipped Gardner Artist Studio, Nestor Maki, proprietor, makes high-grade portraits, etc., at reasonable prices. Hustling R. B. Howard does an extensive ice cream and confectionery business, wholesale and retail; makes the genuine kind. G. A. Ohman, the bread, cake and pastry baker, fills a long-felt want with fresh food.

Uxbridge, Mass.

Here, too, you will find congenial people, and a sort of I-am-with-you atmosphere. Just a word or two relative to a few of the live ones. Postmaster Charles E. Cook was appointed by President Cleveland in 1894 and has very acceptably filled his official position ever since—nineteen years, under both Democratic and Republican rule.

Within three years $15,000 have been expended in remodeling and refurnishing the Uxbridge Inn, and today is very inviting. Proprietor Charles C. Ames may take the agency of a popular auto.

The Uxbridge Hardware and Furniture Company, established in 1875, occupy three floors and basement, carrying a complete line of household goods, hardware, paints, oils, etc. Also agent for the Ford auto.

The New Idea Store, Frank B. Cassidy, proprietor, sells good boots, shoes and rubbers for one price and strictly cash. Mr. Cassidy is Democratic nominee for town clerk.

The Chester House, under Miss L. Annie Fisher's able management, is neat, clean and homelike, and prices are reasonable. Dining room will seat sixty-two. Home cooking!

Whitmore Brothers are doing business in the way of selling dry goods, groceries, boots, shoes, etc. You find what you want here and get good treatment.

F. W. Barnes, established in 1874, is right there when it comes to diamonds, watches and jewelry and repair work.

Ayer, Mass.

F. H. Chandler, the house painter, now occupies S. F. Farnsworth's old stand. Makes a specialty of interior work.

Frederick Whitney at Ayer Junction, manufacturers carriages and sleighs, and deals in harnesses and whips; also does jobbing. Been at the old stand thirty-eight years. Bear him in mind.

Boston's Red Tag Sale.

Hurrah for the springtime and the singing birds, and new suits for the entire family at Wolf's, "My Clothier," corner of Hanover and Portland streets, the emporium of fashion, and of real bargains! Yes, and speaking of bargains, please remember that the big Red Tag Sale, which has created such a furore there, closes tonight.

MRS. PANKHURST SENT TO PRISON

LONDON, March 2.—The British government today adopted a stern attitude towards Suffragettes when 124 of the women arrested yesterday in the rioting in which $10,000 damage was done, were arraigned in Bow street police court.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the militant wing, and the other ringleaders were sentenced to two months' imprisonment each.

Demonstration in Court.

The court proceedings were attended by a demonstration when the followers of the women's leaders unfurled banners with the legend "Votes for Women." There were cheers which the police had difficulty in silencing. The prisoners were called "martyrs," and when led away to begin their terms the din became so uproarious the court could not make itself heard.

Despite the denial of the Suffragettes that shots were fired, Scotland Yard has been warned by the Home Office to use stricter measures in dealing with lawless women and to keep well informed of their plans.

It was rumored an attempt may have been made either to intimidate or take the life of Colonial Minister Harcourt because of his opposition to suffrage. Several times he has been attacked by women.

Wrecked Windows.

Along Piccadilly, The Strand, Downing street, Regent street, Oxford street, Bond street and other important arteries of traffic, gaunt, bare windows, denuded of glass, today bore evidence to the completeness of the women's attack.

In Downing street, the attack, led by Mrs. Pankhurst, was concentrated on the official residence of Premier Asquith, of which the windows were completely smashed. Constables are today guarding every one of the raided buildings, which present such a sorry show of patched and plastered fronts as has never been seen since plate-glass was invented.

The raid began at the dinner hour. The women, forming small squads, scattered swiftly through the district, attacking the windows simultaneously. Women drew hammers from their muffs; others had handbags filled with weights which they swung against the glass.

Mrs. Pankhurst kept hurling stones, even after her arrest, and there were three missiles still in her handbag when she arrived at the police station.

Isn't it the Limit what those FAIRMOUNT people want to do now. Hyde Park—excuse us. Ward 26—Dedham and Milton are just as excited as can be. Read the harrowing details exclusively in tomorrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN.

HOTEL GUESTS ARE AWAKENED BY FIRE

Guests at the United States Hotel and patients at the Grace Hospital on Kingston street, were aroused by a fire in the three-and-a-half-story brick building at No. 28 Edinboro street, early today.

The building is occupied by Pierce & Cox, dealers in plumbers' supplies. They occupy the one-story wooden building at No. 143 Kingston street as a show room. This building is across the street from the hotel and hospital and the smoke drifted into the windows of both places. The damage was estimated at $500.

U. S. NEUTRAL IN MEXICO STRIFE

WASHINGTON, March 2.—President Taft at a special meeting of the cabinet today authorized the State department to issue a proclamation of neutrality in connection with the Mexican revolution.

The proclamation will call on American citizens to keep "hands off" the internal affairs of that country.

A telegram has been sent to Ambassador Wilson at the City of Mexico to warn all Americans that they must keep free from the internal dissensions now raging in that country.

Senator Lodge, at the White House again today to go over the situation, referred to the revolt in Mexico as a "state of anarchy."

DIAZ IS READY TO RETURN HOME AND LEAD MEXICANS

NEW YORK, March 2.—General Porfirio Diaz, the ex-President of Mexico, who sailed into his exile from Vera Cruz on May 31 of last year after the revolution of Francisco Madero had brought his many years of dictatorship to an end, is willing to come back to Mexico and lead the people out of their present difficulties if "a strong call" is sent to him. Such is the statement made by him in a recent letter which he sent to a former trusted lieutenant and official under his government who is now in New York.

General Diaz is now living in retirement with his son, Colonel Porfirio Diaz, Jr., and his son's family at Cape Dail, near Toulon, in the south of France. He settled there after spending many months of his exile in Switzerland and northern Spain.

Willing to Return.

The ex-President of Mexico expressed his willingness to return to the land over which he ruled as dictator for thirty-seven years in these words, copied from the original letter, with the translation made by the recipient of the letter:

"I said in my farewell that if the Mexican people needed me I would come again. Should the people involved in present difficulties send a strong call to me I would fulfill my promise."

In his reference to his farewell Gen. Diaz evidently had in mind the words which he addressed to the loyal remnant of his army which guarded the house in which he lived in Vera Cruz for three days before his departure for Santander on the steamship Ypiranga. On the morning of his departure the fugitive ex-President expressed a wish to say farewell to the soldiers and detachment of sailors from the revenue cutters San Juan de Ulloa and Zaragoza constituting his guard and they were drawn up before the steps of the house. Diaz then addressed them:

"I will go from Mexico, but I give my word of honor that if at any time this republic be involved in any great trouble I will come back and under the shadow of this flag for which I have fought much and with the help of this army, so loyal, I will know how to conquer as I once conquered in the past."

Promised to Go Back.

Three days after his sailing from Vera Cruz General Diaz said to a reporter who was on the steamship:

"I will never return to Mexico unless my country should be threatened by a foreign power. Such should have been the interpretation of my farewell address. I will not return because of internal danger."

When the recipient of the recent letter from General Diaz was asked if he believed the former president had modified his determination not to return to Mexico to intervene in domestic troubles or if he took Diaz's present declaration to indicate that he believed that Mexico was being threatened by a foreign power and that he would fulfill the letter of his promise that individual said that the existence of both conditions might be thought to have had an influence upon General Diaz's mind.

PUBLICITY WOMEN ENTERTAIN AD MEN

The Boston Women's Publicity Club held its first function to which men were admitted last night at Hotel Thorndike. It was Men's night, and a brilliant affair. Mrs. George Brewster Gallup, the president of the club, acted as toastmistress and, following the speech of Herbert S. Houston, urged the adoption of the resolution suggested by him, that the club take a strong stand by Dr. Wiley, and that furthermore it indorses the bill now before the House regarding the pure food requirements of advertisements. The resolution was unanimously adopted. Many prominent advertising men of this and other cities were present.

I have in my possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, failing memory, brought on by excesses, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes—without any additional help or medicine—that I think every man who wishes to regain his full powers and virility quickly, should have a copy. So I have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write me for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a special study of the subject, and I am convinced it is the surest-acting combination for the cure of physical deficiencies and vigor failure ever put together.

I think I owe it to my fellow-men to send them a copy in confidence, so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what I believe is the quickest acting upbuilding restorative remedy ever devised, and so cure himself at home quickly. Just drop me a line like this: Dr. A. E. Robinson, 5015 Luck Building, Detroit, Mich., and I will send you a copy of this splendid recipe free of charge. A great many doctors would charge $3.00 to $5.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but I send it entirely free.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

STAHL TO PLAY FIRST GAME TODAY AT TRAINING CAMP

KLING GOES AFTER BROWN AND REULBACH FOR NATIONAL CLUB

SELECT ALLEYS FOR BIG MATCH

Bowlers and bowling fans will in the Sunday AMERICAN of tomorrow be told of the alleys the bowling committee have decided upon to hold the elimination round, semi-finals and final of the Boston AMERICAN Bowling Championship Contest.

Buy the Sunday AMERICAN of tomorrow and find out what brilliant success the committee had in locating the alleys, and the dates on which will be decided the elimination round, semi-finals and finals.

It is now assured that the finish of the AMERICAN Bowling Contest will be by far the most thrilling candlepin battle ever held in New England, lasting through three days. The Sunday AMERICAN will give every detail.

For a week now the 208 bowlers eligible to the elimination rounds have been greatly agitated in wanting to know what alleys would be secured in Boston. The winner of the contest gains the title of champion, besides being in line for a neat pot of money.

This is through the AMERICAN giving $100 to the winner, $75 to second man, $125 to the bowler getting the best high five strings in the elimination round and semi-finals, $100 to the bowler getting the high single string in the preliminaries, semi-finals and finals, and one handsome leather traveling bags to all remaining eligible in the semi-finals, ratings up to the final of the twenty strings.

Under the conditions of the contest the winner can secure $400 at the start, the second man $250, the third man $150, the five-string high-scoring $25 for the high five string and $10 for the high single string. The bowler finishing second in this way can secure $250 at the start, $50, and the one coming third, by being lucky, can come in for $40.

The Bowling Editor wants Fred Williams, the former owner of the Casino alleys, to be in the Boston AMERICAN sporting department to-day at 1 o'clock, on a matter of great importance. If not convenient for him to call in, will be in the same hour Monday, but the sooner the better.

¶ GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER, known the world over as the creator of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," tells in an admirable short story—rather a long short story, we should say—but one cannot get too much of "Chester"—about a certain all-efficient man who was just where he ought to have been when he was very much needed; in Sunday's AMERICAN. Mr. Chester calls his story "While It Rained." You will call it a corking good yarn.

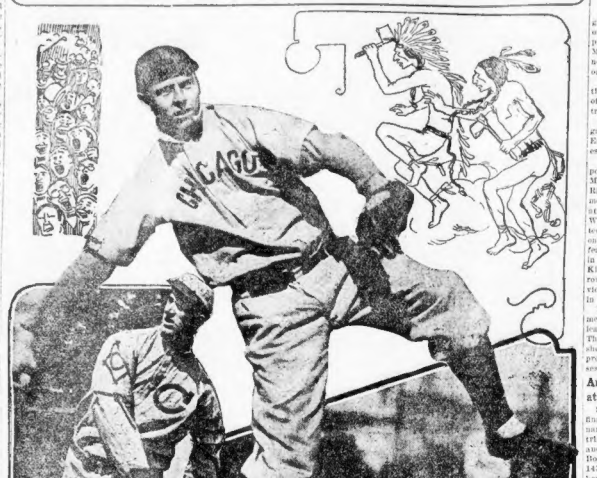
Pittsburg, about twenty yards on Madeira, and Pinch held his own against Penn. Irwin took up the running and increased his lead over McCarthy to 100 yards. Murphy Refuses to Sell Brown to Pilgrims

Kling Still Angles for Pitcher Reulbach

OLD CUB PITCHING STARS, SOUGHT BY KLING FOR THE PILGRIMS



"Three-fingered" Brown, in the larger picture, and Ed Reulbach of the Cubs, whom Manager Kling is after for Boston.

Boston National Manager Goes to Chicago in the Hope of Getting Some Cubs.

CHICAGO, March 2.—"I wouldn't trade Mordecai Brown for the whole Boston team. He is the highest salaried pitcher in the world."

This was the outburst of President Murphy of the former champions when informed today that Johnny Kling was coming to see him Monday to make him a trade for Reulbach and Brown.

"I just signed Mordecai for three years at a salary which puts trading him out of the question," added the Cub boss. "I believe he is still the greatest pitcher in the world. Kling can't have him, nor do I think there is a chance that I'll trade Reulbach to Boston."

Johnny Kling is expected here Monday to talk trade with his ex-boss, Charlie Murphy of the Cubs. He is still after Ed Reulbach or Mordecai Brown, or both of them, notwithstanding that Murphy says he is armed with full authority to buy or trade.

James B. Gaffney, the Boston Nationals' chief owner, is willing to spend a bunch of currency for a pitcher or two. He wants first-class youngsters. He can use plenty of the latter. He must have more strength in the box and he has given Kling plenty of money to get one or two good ones.

Kling knows the exact situation here with respect to Reulbach. Murphy and Gaffney disagree on the latter's value to the minors a little while ago. Reulbach broke in a completely sound again, he declares, but Bill does not intend taking any foolish chances, so it is up to him to decide whether or not he wants to play tomorrow.

Claude Ritchie has arrived here with "Nap" Rucker.

HARVARD LOSES AT CHESS.

NEW YORK, March 2.—By the one-sided and entirely unexpected score of 6 points to 1 the Yale chess team, composed of seven defeated the team representing the Harvard club. As a consequence of this victory the Yale club obtained the right to play for the Intercoll trophy, which became the permanent property of that club.

JOE WILSON IN DEAL.

DAVENPORT, Ia., March 2.—The Davenport "Three Eye" League Club has announced the purchase from the St. Louis Americans of First Baseman Joe Wilson.

Stahl Gets Into the Game Today

Red Sox Manager Declares He Will Play First on the All-Americans.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 2.—This is the day that Jake Stahl, the new manager of the Red Sox, does the "comeback" stunt on the diamond.

Stahl announced early today that he would operate the first corner for the All-Americans in the afternoon game with the Brooklyn National League team, provided Manager Donovan can find room for him.

Stahl also gave Fred Anderson permission to pitch part of the game, Carrigan will scarcely go behind the net until the Red Sox get into action at Majestic Park. Both broke up a completely sound again, he declares, but Bill does not intend taking any foolish chances, so it is up to him to decide whether or not he wants to play tomorrow.

Claude Ritchie has arrived here with "Nap" Rucker.

Claims Boxer Wore Water-Soaked Gloves

Boxing Commission also Alleges Callahan Used Glazed Bandages.

"Irish Paddy" Callahan has caused a big stir in New York boxing circles. It is through Paddy that the New York Boxing Commission has issued a ruling which makes it necessary for new gloves to be used in every-night bouts.

It all happened thusly. Callahan was billed to meet Louis de Postbiez, the French boxer, at the American A. A. of Brooklyn. It is claimed that Paddy entered the ring with his hands covered with glazed bandages of great thickness. It is also alleged he had on a pair of old boxing gloves which were as hard as boards from being water soaked.

The Frenchman refused to take a chance of getting "murdered," and would not fight Callahan unless the latter removed some of his bandages. Paddy would not do this, but told Postbiez that he might put on as heavy handgear as he desired. The Frenchman did not take kindly to Paddy's suggesting, and refused to fight. Another boxer was substituted in Callahan's place and he got his, good and plenty.

With Big Leaguers in Southern Camps

CHICAGO, March 2.—Headed by Johnny Evers and Joe Tinker, the Chicago Cubs and Chicago baseball fans gathered at the Dearborn station here for New Orleans on the Special Baseball train.

WACO, Tex., March 2.—Rain prevented the Sox records practicing, but they got out in the afternoon and had a long practice game. The batting honors were evenly distributed, everyone getting a couple of hits. The Sox special was delayed by a derailment enroute. The train was expected to pull in about noon today.

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 2.—Several of the regulars have arrived from Cincinnati, and Manager Hank O'Day will have practically his full strength for the opening game with the Cubs. Bescher has been missed so far. Arthur Fletcher, third baseman from Birmingham, was at practice today. One of Pitcher Rudy's "headaches" accident occurred at morning practice and Pitcher Ames was forced to appear in the afternoon, as the injury is not serious.

WEST RADEN, Ind., March 2.—Manager Rowland has instructed Bob Ewing, pitcher, and Harry Steadland, third baseman, to report for a workout here with the Cardinals. Although neither of these veterans has signed, Pres. Hedges claims to mean that Rowland does not expect "Miss" Ewing to hold out. Ewing is the only one of the Cincinnati players who has failed to report. Manager Rowland, after getting two veterans, Pitcher Packard and Third Baseman Steadland, decided to draw on good youngsters and trust that he can get to open the coming season.

MONROE, La., March 2.—Temperature of the Michigan camp at 4 p.m. was 80 degrees, which is a reduction of the Tiger training work by a couple of hours. Today was the first really warm day, so no more sense of heat could be said. Trainer Pabbill believes that many an ache and pain has put himself out of the game by working too hard when really he ought to have taken a little. The thinks all the Tigers in camp would show up better weight and he intends to round them up on it. Pitchers Dauss and Covington are the men who will reduce a trifle.

MARLIN, Tex., March 2.—The arrival of the Washington team of veterans put new life in the Senators' camp and by way of celebration a double-header was played with the Cubs. Practically all of the veterans of the team arrived in excellent condition and did not attempt any hard work the first day out.

Three baseball players under contract to the Boston National League club who reside in Texas have been released to the Pennsylvania League at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon by Manager Dode Paskert, of Atlanta, Ga., where Manager Harry Wolverton will condition his club this Spring. Only one person will leave New York, making the Pennsylvania the "home-hare" candidate, pots in an appearance at the last hour.

AD WOLGAST TO MEET RIVERS

By JACK CONWAY.

When Lightweight Champion Ad Wolgast defends his title in a California ring on the Fourth of July, his opponent will probably be Joe Rivers, the stocky Hide Mexican battler. Wolgast and Rivers are now virtually matched to meet at Vernon on the holiday.

The lightweight champion has almost entirely recovered from his recent attack of appendicitis. Ad has been doing light training during the past two weeks. The Michigan "Wildcat" intends to engage in several short bouts here in the East against second raters before he clashes in a championship battle.

Wolgast has selected Rivers for an opponent for the Fourth of July, because the Mexican is a big favorite on the coast. River now weighs 128 pounds, but it is more than likely he will tip the beam at 133 by the time that he clashes with Wolgast. The Mexican marvel is but nineteen years of age. He has been boxing only two years. Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion, is the only man in the world who ever defeated Rivers. Kilbane knocked Rivers out in sixteen rounds at Vernon last September. Previous to this Rivers ever outpointed Kilbane in a twenty-round contest.

Wolgast says that if Rivers refuses to meet him on the Fourth of July, the Mexican will never again be offered a match. Though young and inexperienced, Rivers should give Wolgast a great battle for supremacy, as he is a clever boxer and possesses a punch.

Amateur Tournament at B. A. A. Tonight.

Some slashing bouts are expected in the finals of the B. A. A. amateur boxing tournament which takes place tonight. The trials were held on Wednesday evening, and were productive of some good bouts. Bouts will be held in the 105, 115, 125, 145 and heavyweight classes. The members of the Exeter Street Club are sure to witness good, bad and indifferent contests. Many ludicrous bouts are pulled off at every amateur show. Some of the youngsters who enter amateur contests do not know the first thing about the manly art, and their efforts to win fame and glory in the squared circle are laughable. Some good boys, however, have been developed in New England this Winter, and from present indications this section of the country should be represented by some sterling performers at the national championships which take place at Mechanics Building next month. The Riverside Boat Club of Cambridge plans to hold a tournament for the "simon pures" on Thursday evening, March 14.

Donahue After Connolly and Ray Bronson.

Johnny Connolly, the Scotch lightweight champion, brought a hornet's nest down upon himself when he challenged Young Bronson of Roxbury. Bronson says that he is willing to meet Eddie Mack's wallopper at any time for a finish fight, and that he believes that he is capable of outpointing the Scotchman with one of his hands tied behind his back. Donahue has been getting things easy during the past few months, and is now in the pink of condition. He would also like to get a match with Ray Brown, the Indianapolis welterweight who is now on the trail of Mike Gibbons of St. Paul. Donahue is willing to make 148 pounds for Bronson, who has been doing his road work in search of Young Saylor, who has been doing some good work in the squared circle the past year. Donahue is scheduled to meet Young Mendell at Manchester, N. H., in a ten-round bout at Pinsfield, Monday night, and he is confident that he will be returned the winner.

White Returns from New York Campaign.

Joe White of South Boston is back in town after a very successful campaign in New York. White is willing to meet any welterweight in New England, and he is particularly jealous of Jack Dillon, concluding with Johnny Connolly. White isn't much of a boxer, but is a rattling good infighter, and can do with the best of them.

Bat Nelson as Crazy as a Pawnbroker.

Our old friend Bat Nelson continues to engage in at least one fight a week. The Fitzgerald Boy is certainly making true scrapping appetizer these days. Nelson will not perform unless he is given $1,000 for his services and with the privilege of repossessing any part of the purse. After repaying 30 per cent. of the purse to his manager, Nelson says that Bat is clear "daff," but my, how I would like to be daffy, like Nelson.

Jimmy Walsh to Box Willie Jones.

Eddie Keevin has returned from a trip to New York, and says that he has matched Jimmy Walsh for the Real Sporting Pride, to meet Willie Jones before the Gowanus Club of Brooklyn, on March 9. Jimmy is a clever young chap and should defeat Jones. The men have agreed to weigh in at 120 pounds at 6 o'clock.

Boxing Results

LOWELL, March 2.—Young Jauser of Boston and Jack Reddy of Lowell fought to a ten-round draw, it was to be a twelve-round fight, in which Jauser had the better of it. In a semi-final Sonker Murphy of Boston and Young Walsh of Lowell fought eight rounds to a draw. In the preliminary Tom Doyle of Lowell put the decision over Young Jones of Lowell after four rounds.

DAYTON, O., March 2.—Fighting grimly, dogged and determinedly against a stiffer and apparently stronger opponent, Battling Nelson stayed the limit of twenty rounds with Sailor Trost of Covington here. As a preliminary, Jack Lesser of Dayton defeated Young Adams for fifteen rounds at the Arena at Pittsburg.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Jim Coffey, the "Dublin giant," scraped Al Rossiter of this city in the fifth round of their ten-round bout at the New York A. C. in Harlem.

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—Tommy O'Keefe bested Willie Mosky at the Nonpareil Club.

JOPLIN, Mo., March 2.—Jeff Clark defeated Harry Lewis in fifteen rounds before the Sixth Wed. A. C.

Sox and Pilgrims Hopeless

Lady Astrologer Gives "Inside" Tips

Only Eight Real Live Stars

By CHARLES DRYDEN.

WHETHER a ball player shall prosper and deliver the goods in his business depends entirely on his birthday. So sayeth a lady astrologer well past sixty years of age. She invaded the Red Sox office this morning with the dope on the athletes of both Boston teams. The astrologer lady wore a long black for coat, a hat upholstered in yellow feathers, and she revealed the mysteries of the future free of charge to all who listened, and listening was good.

It Didn't Cost a Cent for The Inside Info'

Before opening up her line of advance information the gifted astrologer lady asked for Manager Stahl. She opened up was a business man and would pay for knowledge that might help him in his baseball career. On learning that the big fellow was at Hot Springs the star gazer read off the answers of the planets just the same. She had learned the birthdays of the Pilgrim and Sox players and doped out their futures from the signs of the planets, the moon, the Zodiac and the Isthmus of Panama.

Without paying a cent for the information Stahl may learn that he has but four good men on the team and that he is not among them. The astrologer lady splashed right out loud with the plain truth. After the name and birth date on the two club rosters the seeress had written the doom of each player as revealed by the solar system. It was either "fine and dandy," or "no good."

On the Red Sox list, Heinie Wagner, Dave Lewis, Duffy Lewis and Ray Collins, the tall rangy guy, were the only ones entitled to belong. The astrologer lady read in a low, mysterious voice and we could not grasp all the dope. One of the reporters asked the lady for the revelations of the stars so he could send the answers to Stahl at Hot Springs, but the astrologer rolled up the valuable papers and put them in her bag. It was apparent she had been reading the stars in the case of this fellow and without his knowledge and consent.

Gardner and Yerkes Are in the Dead Class with Hooper

Anyhow, she said Larry Gardner was "no good" and Harry Hooper would be "rotten" a couple of years longer then turn out "fine and dandy." Another "dead" one was Tris Speaker and Hugh Bradley was "punk." "Buck" O'Brien is liable to drop dead any minute. Not only were Wagner and Dave Lewis born under the right planet, but their names make them doubly strong in the national pastime and business pursuits. Heine and David, the astrologer lady said, are the best names with which the expert astrologer has dealings. Heinie's real name is Charley, but nobody let the lady into that secret. Charles is a name born to trouble. We believe it and look for Charley, alias Heinie, Wagner to have one sweet time winning the pennant all by his lonesome.

You'll Be Surprised to Hear the South End Dope

Dope for the South End also was replete with surprises. Hank Gowdy, Vin Campbell, Al Mattern and "Doc" Miller are right up in the front rank of the "fine and dandy" class. Tyler was no good last season, but is to be a "bearcat" this year. Donnelly is "no good," and Kirke is a joke. Jackson and Hauser are a couple of "four flushers." What do you know about that? The planets do not lie, so the astrologers assure us. In that event the Pilgrims are up against it. "Nolley John" Kling is a "dumb" blacksmith. The astrologer lady said that with proper handling Hank Gowdy would develop into the grandest pastimer the world had ever seen.

They'll Take 'Em All South Just the Same

Regardless of the appalling truth that each Boston club has but four players worth a boot in the first place, preparations for the Southern trips have not been checked. Mr. Ward and Mr. McAleer say they will take a chance with the "dead ones" regardless of the planets, the Zodiac and the Isthmus of Panama. Professor Quirk, who was born in the dark of the moon, will accompany the Sox.

George Cecil Ferguson, late of the Pilgrims, but now of the plumbing trust, was a pleasant caller at the Cubs' headquarters in Chicago the other day. George Cecil is traveling about the country in his cute, little, flossets and load pipe. He was on the way to his home at Terre Haute and may see Mordecai Brown, who is resting at Rosedale, adjacent to Terre Haute.

Arlington Pitcher Signs With Grays

Tom O'Neill, Pitcher for the Arlington K. of C. Team, Will Get Good Tryout.

Fred Lake has signed up a promising young pitcher for his Providence International team in Tom O'Neil of Arlington. The young man has pitched sensational ball for the past five years as a member of the Arlington Knights of Columbus baseball team, and also many other fast semi-professional teams.

His record as a member of the Arlington Knights is worthy of especial mention, as this team won the championship of the K. of C. League for three years running with O'Neil in the box. O'Neil should make good with the Providence team, as he has a lot of speed and good curves, and under the tutelage of a good coach should develop into major league quality. He will leave March 1 with Fred Lake for Savannah, where the Providence team will do their Spring training.

Mayor of Chicago Out as Boxing Fan

Will Approve of Sport if Carried on Without "Fake Fight" Promoters.

CHICAGO, March 2.—Mayor Carter H. Harrison is in favor of the resumption of boxing in Chicago if it can be accomplished in such a way that the public will be safeguarded from "fake fights" and other exploitations by unscrupulous promoters.

The Mayor said he considered boxing a clean, manly sport, but that the tendency of promoters to fool the public had attached a certain odium to the pastime which really should be directed to the men themselves.

"My attitude toward backers of 'fake fights' and questionable wrestling matches is well known," said the Mayor. "I will not change that attitude, but if the genuine sportsmen in Illinois succeed in having an honest boxing bill passed by the Legislature, I will place no objection in the way."

SCHOOL SEVENS IN TITLE GAME

Melrose High hockey team, champions of Massachusetts, and the Hope Street High School seven, title holders of Rhode Island, clash this afternoon at the Arena in a game for the championship of all New England.

Melrose won the local title a week ago in the deciding game of the Interscholastic League, defeating Arlington High by the score of 1 to 0. The Melrose High team has not yet been defeated, having won thirteen games and tied two. Hope Street High has won eleven games and lost none, and will be a hard nut for the Melrose players to crack.

Melrose will have Hanson, Wannamaker, Wilbey and Melady in its forward line. The Hope Street defense will have no easy time in checking the quartet of speedy skaters.

The Hope Street team witnessed the game which decided the Bay State championship, and every man feels quite confident that the Rhode Island team will carry the championship banner back to Providence.

THREE COLLEGES IN MEET AT ANNAPOLIS

NEW YORK, March 2.—Harry Fisher, graduate manager of athletics at Columbia, announced yesterday that Columbia, Cornell and the Navy will meet in a three-cornered track meet at Annapolis on Saturday, May 11. This will be the first time that such a meet has ever been held at Annapolis, and it will also be the first time that Cornell and Columbia have ever met prior to the intercollegiate championships.

Columbia should hold her own, for although the team is weak in the distance events, R. S. Beatty, the shotputter; H. S. Babcock, the intercollegiate polo vault champion, and H. M. Borah, in the quarter mile, should lay a good foundation for the Columbia total, which should offset in part the points scored by John Paul Jones and Tel Berna for the Ithacans.

Jeffries May Have Been 'Doped' Again

Big Fellow Admits He May Have Signed Telegram With "Fealing Good." but Can't Remember.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 2.—Oh, for a Sherlock Holmes to unravel the mystery connected with the now celebrated "Jeffries telegram" case. Jim Jeffries, the most puzzled of men, still insists that ex-Featherweight Champion Abe Attell successfully "put one over" on him.

First Jeffries issued a voluntary statement to the effect that he had not sent a telegram in weeks and charged that Attell had signed or caused his name to be signed to the wire which went north to Promoter Jim Coffroth, adding to the effect that Attell had been entitled to a draw with Kilbane and that Abe should still be recognized as the featherweight champion.

Next came a statement made by Attell in San Francisco to which the little boxer claimed that Jay Davidson, a local sporting writer, had written the trouble-making telegram, but that Jeffries had signed it.

Confronted with this information Jeffries made the following statement today: "Attell says that I signed the message, Davidson says that I signed it, but I'll swear that I have not the slightest recollection of doing so. Abe is a smart chap, and he put this over on me."

Isn't it the Limit what those FAIRMOUNT people want to do now. Hyde Park—excuse us, Ward 26—Dedham and Milton are just as excited as can be. Read the harrowing details exclusively in tomorrow's SUNDAY AMERICAN.

M'LEAN THE STAR AT ARENA RACES

Robert McLean of Chicago, the nineteen-year-old international champion speed skater, was the star at the Arena on Saturday Night at the Arena. McLean won the mile handicap in 3m. 14 2-5s. and then skated an exhibition quarter-mile against time, and came within one second of the record. Margaret Graham, the Ludlow champion, won the half-mile event for girls. Andrew Pederson turned the tables on the Ludlow girl in the special race of eight laps. Royal Dannuly, the Dorchester High School athlete, won the boys' half-mile event. Gordon Thompson of Roxbury won firsts in the New England championship two-mile race, the 880-yard open and the running broad jump.

RILEY'S COLUMN

A word of comfort does a baseball player more good than a hundred weeks of training. That is, if he's a good ball player and has the right spirit. Witness, Heinie Wagner and Ray Collins. It looks like Wagner has "come back," and everybody knows that Ray Collins has turned into one of the handiest southpaws in the American League.

* * *

Wagner is a natural born ball player. It's about all he thinks of. When his good right went to smash last Spring and the greatest shortstop in the American League found he couldn't whip the ball over hap-hazard like he used to, he felt like a man feels when the doctor shakes his head and says nothing. That right arm was the valuable to Wagner as most men's heads are to them. Wagner got that cold sensation in the dome that tackles you all when you find you're "gone." He lost his head. He couldn't throw straight, and, going from bad to worse, couldn't nail those sizzlers in old time style.

* * *

Heinie moped all last Summer. He laid off and nursed that right arm like it was a pet youngster. You couldn't squeeze a smile out of him. He was scared all the way through. He be came so nervous that he couldn't keep out of the game long. He would try it out, play a bit of sensational ball and then when the old pain hit him, would go all to pieces. His teammates would slap him on the back and try to encourage him, but it was no use. Rumors of a trade made matters worse, and Heinie was informed from the "inside" that he was likely to go. That settled Heinie.

Heinie's arm was no more valuable to Wagner as most men's heads are to them. Wagner got that cold sensation in the dome that tackles you all when you find you're "gone." He lost his head. He couldn't throw straight, and, going from bad to worse, couldn't nail those sizzlers in old time style.

That settled Heinie.

* * *

Jimmie McAleer saw Wagner one day last Fall. "What're you worrying about?" was the first thing he shot at the veteran captain. "You've got a lot of baseball left in that right arm. Don't let it worry you. Just take good care of it, forget all about what's going to happen and you'll come back better than ever. You're like most other people. You're worrying about something that will probably never happen."

* * *

Heinie went home, quit worrying, and the other day he sent this message to a Boston friend: "The old arm is great. I can hurl a ball over Bunker Hill monument. I can make the three of spades look like a deuce at a hundred yards." So Heinie's mental trouble is cured, and that's three-quarters of the job.

* * *

Ray Collins is one of the most ambitious pitchers in the league. Also, he is gifted with an unusual bunch of gray matter. Collins could not pitch the kind of ball Taylor and Donovan wanted. He tried and failed. John T. Taylor sent for him one day. "What's the matter?" he asked. "I'm worried; I can't pitch the kind of baseball you want," said Collins. "Well, later, you the star at the Hub. Stop worrying. Send here's a check that may help out." Collins called into the box next day, showed all kinds of stuff won his game handily, never quit from that time on and finished the season like a whirlwind.

* * *

Eddie Cicotte is another example. Eddie and his boss could never agree. They seemed to get the habit of quarreling. Eddie worried his head off. One day, Taylor patched up the controversy and the next time out Cicotte won. Then there were rumors that Cicotte would be traded to Detroit. That fixed what Eddie thought was a hoodoo on his shoulders. It wasn't a hoodoo. It was worry. McAleer is going to try to cure Cicotte of the disease this year. If he succeeds, there is a chance that "Knuckles" will shine again.

World's Mile Record For Oscar Hedlund

Performance at Troy, N. Y., Meet Proves Greater Than at First Reported.

A new world's record for a mile was made by Oscar F. Hedlund at the Troy, N. Y., meet on Washington's Birthday. The track on which he ran was supposed to be exactly a mile, and he was clocked at 4m. 10 4-5s., equaling the world's indoor record. Colonel George Billinger of the B. A. A. athletic committee has received a letter from R. Campbell, athletic manager of the Infantry company that held the meet, in which Campbell gives facts that show Hedlund beat the record. After the meeting the track, says Campbell, was measured and found to be twelve yards more than a mile.

PERCIVAL WINNER.

In the twenty-ninth game of the Class B amateur billiard tourney at the Elite Percival defeated Goodwin, 300 to 161.

Brown is represented by a veteran team and will present nearly all the lineup who defeated Amherst 43 to 18 a year ago. This year the Brunonians have a good record. They defeated the Cornell swimmers by a good margin the night before the Ithacans bowed out to the Amherst polo team.

JOHNSON-FLYNN BOUT JULY 24

SALT LAKE CITY, March 2.—Jim Flynn and Jack Johnson will meet in a 20-round bout for the heavyweight championship of the world at or near Wendover, Utah, July 24.

This is the substance of an announcement made by persons who are financially interested in the venture with Jack Curley.

The statement was made after the information was received from Carson City, Nev., that the Legislature did not take up before its adjournment the proposed repeal of the law permitting championship boxing matches in Nevada.

Business men interested in the promotion of the fight will meet tonight. It is understood the arena will be erected across the Nevada line, within a few rods from the Wendover, Utah, depot.

START ELIMINATION MATCHES FOR TITLE

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—The world's middleweight championship, ownerless since the death of Stanley Ketchel, bids fair to be re-established inside the next few weeks as the outcome of the elimination bouts now being pulled off by Promoter Tom McCarey. He signed Jim Coffroth of San Francisco. Jack Herrick, a solid-looking middleweight, meets Bert Fagin in a scheduled twenty-round battle before the Pacific A. C. at Vernon this afternoon. Fagin is a San Francisco product, with a long knockout record. The winner of the bout will probably be matched against Frank Klaus or Jack Dillon in San Francisco. Tommy Kilbane of Cleveland and Louis Bayer, a Pittsburg local lightweight, will meet in a twenty-round bout after the beaver men have settled their differences.

TUFTS PITCHER GETS RED SOX CONTRACT

R. A. Smith, who pitched for Tufts in 1911, will most likely be a member of the Boston Red Sox the coming season. He signed an agreement last Fall to go with the Red Sox, but thought he might want to play college ball for a while next Spring. He wired President McAleer asking for his release, but instead of sending him a release, McAleer sent him a contract to sign, and will ask Smith to report at Hot Springs.

TO those who are not thoroughly familiar with it, the River Thames and its docks from London Bridge to Gravesend seem a vast and uncharted wilderness of craft, a wilderness in which it would be perfectly easy to hide even a three-master successfully; to such people the idea of looking for a small steam launch on the river would be about equivalent to the idea of looking for a needle in a bundle of hay.

But the fact is that there are hundreds of men between St. Katherine's wharf and Blackwell who literally know the Thames as the suburban householder knows his back garden; who can recognize thousands of ships and put a name to them at a distance of half a mile; who are informed as to every movement of vessels on the great stream; who know all the captains, all the engineers, all the lightermen, all the pilots, all the licensed watermen and all the unlicensed scoundrels from the Tower to Gravesend and much more.

By these experts of the Thames the slightest unusual event on the water is noticed and discussed; a misery cannot change hands but they will guess shrewdly upon the price paid and the intentions of the new owner with regard to it. They have a habit of watching the river for the mere interest of the sight, and they talk of what they see in the housewives gathered of an evening around the cottage door.

If the first mate of a Cattle liner gets the sack they will be able to tell you what he said to the captain and what the Old Man said to him, and what both said to the Board, and having finished aft that affair, they will cheerfully turn to discussing whether Bill Stevens sank his barge outside the West Indies No. 2 by accident or on purpose.

Watched All Night

Theodore Rucksole had no satisfactory means of identifying the steam launch which carried away Mr. Tom Jackson. The sky had clouded over soon after midnight and there was also a slight mist, and he had only been able to make out that it was a low craft, about sixty feet long, probably painted black.

He had personally kept a watch all through the night on vessels going up stream, and during the next morning he had a man take his place who warned him whenever a steam launch went toward Westminster.

After his conversation with Prince Ariel, he went down the river in a hired wherry as far as the custom-house, and poked about everywhere in search of any vessel which could by any possibility be the one he was in search of. But he found nothing. He was therefore tolerably sure that the mysterious launch lay somewhere below the custom-house.

At the custom house stairs he landed and asked for a very high official—an official inferior only to a commissioner—whom he had entertained once in New York and who had met him in London on business at Lord's.

In the large hot dingy office of the great man a long conversation took place, a conversation in which Rucksole had to exercise a certain amount of persuasive power and which ultimately ended in the high official ringing his bell.

"Desire Mr. Hazell, room No. 332, to speak to me," said the official to the boy who answered the summons, and then, turning to Rucksole, "I need hardly repeat, my dear Mr. Rucksole, that this is strictly unofficial."

"Agreed, of course," said Rucksole.

Mr. Hazell entered. He was a young man of about thirty, dressed in blue serge, with a pale, keen face, a brown mustache and a rather handsome brown beard.

"Mr. Hazell," said the high official, "let me introduce you to Mr. Theodore Rucksole—you will doubtless be familiar with his name, Mr. Hazell," he went on, to Rucksole, "is one of our outdoor staff, what we call an examining officer. Just now he is doing night duty. He has a boat on the river and a couple of men, and the right to board and examine any craft whatever. What Mr. Hazell and his crew don't know about the Thames between here and Gravesend isn't knowledge."

Entirely at Ease

"Glad to meet you, sir," said Rucksole simply, and they shook hands.

Rucksole observed with satisfaction that Mr. Hazell was entirely at his ease.

"Now, Hazell," the high official continued, "Mr. Rucksole wants you to help in a little private expedition on the river tonight. I will give you a night's leave. I sent for you partly because I thought you would enjoy the affair and partly because I think I can rely on you to regard it as entirely unofficial and not to talk about it. You understand? I dare say you will have no cause to regret having obliged Mr. Rucksole."

"I think I grasp the situation," said Hazell, with a slight smile.

"And, by the way," added the high official, "although the business is unofficial, it might be well if you wore your official overcoat. See?"

"Decidedly," said Hazell. "I should have done so in any case."

"And now, Mr. Hazell," said Rucksole, "will you do me the pleasure of lunching with me. If you agree, I should like to lunch at the place you usually frequent." So it came to pass that Theodore Rucksole and George Hazell, outdoor clerk in the customs, lunched together at Thomas's chophouse, in the city, upon mutton chops and coffee.

Five World-Famous Artists Draw for You

FIVE world-famous artists contribute striking works of art to tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

Philip Bolland, one of the most gifted of American illustrators, has drawn the remarkably pretty Unionist who decorates the front cover.

Neil Brinkley, who now has many imitators but no equal, continues to interest and delight us with "The Adventures of Cupid!" The newest picture is awfully sweet, but the Little Chap is sick abed. (You'd be sick abed in a minute, if you could have his stress. Wait until you see them!)

Penryn Stanlaws has drawn the pictures to illustrate "What's Worth While," written by Carolyn Wells.

James Montgomery Flagg, whose wonderfully up-to-date drawings are the talk of the United States and Canada, is seen at his best in the clever picture called "The Dangerous Risk a Desperate Wife Took."

Charles Dana Gibson is also on the program. The Gibson picture illustrates an incident in Robert W. Chambers' newest story, "The Turning Point."

A Fashion of the Hour

For the Tall or Medium Figure

A SQUARE, FUR-TRIMMED TRAIN

A Paris correspondent writes that now is the time to use fur on one's evening gowns if one has a penchant in that direction, for such trimming will no longer be fashionable after the end of this season. One may have to wait years for another opportunity to use fur in this manner. The illustration shown is a chic example of a square lace fur-trimmed train which everyone is wearing. It gives an added effect of allmness and height to the figure. Stripes, such as have been worn so much this Winter, are still holding their own, but they are on the eve of giving way to soft taffetas with small embroidered or printed flowers. Shot silks are still very popular in Paris. The most daring effort of fashion, however, is the use of black and white fur in strong contrast. A shoulder wrap is formed of two foxes, one white and one black, and the muff is carried out in the same fashion—half black and half white. The total effect is still further heightened by the wearing of one black and one white glove on appropriate sides.

Too Many on One

THE Brightbridge Mounted Infantry were turned out on parade. Their cattle were not exactly of the race-horse pattern, as they were only hired from the local cab proprietors and omnibus merchants.

But of all the ancient mounts, that ridden by Trooper Slasher was the worst, and was awarded the bluish by an overwhelming majority, without even a show of hands.

"School gracious!" gasped the captain, staring at the ancient charger. "What ever have you got there, Trooper Slasher?"

"A horse, sir," replied the trooper sadly. "I see he's cast a shoe," said the officer.

Trooper Slasher agreed.

"What, you know it and you don't get him shod!" stormed the person in command.

"Well, sir," remarked the trooper, "you see, he couldn't carry more than three shoes!"

Couldn't Afford It

ELLIS PARKER BUTLER says that his greatest difficulty now that there is a demand for his stories, is to find a competent secretary. He confided his difficulty to a friend, who at once said:

"Why, I know just the man for you. A good stenographer, temperate habits, absolutely reliable."

"Fine, but has he a sense of humor?" asked Mr. Butler.

"Yes, he has that," replied the friend. "I fancy he has a very pretty wit of his own. In fact I've heard him get off one or two rather neat things of his own."

"I'm sorry to hear that," replied Butler. "He won't do, that's plain."

"For heaven's sake, why not?" asked the surprised friend.

"I'll tell you—just in confidence," said Mr. Butler. "I had one secretary once with a sense of humor, and it was so strong that between us we could not do any work because of his laughing at the things I dictated. I really can't afford to pay a chap $4 a day for laughing."

Another Sect

ONE of Dr. Aked's most ardent supporters when that divine was pastor of Mr. John D. Rockefeller's church is fond of telling what he considers a striking example of Dr. Aked's wit.

Dr. Aked was fond of taking long country walks, and one day, being far in the country and wandering through a field, he and his friend noticed a sign nailed to a tree, "No trespassing here."

Hurrying to get out of the forbidden ground they met a farmer who assailed them grimly with the remark:

"Trespassers in this field are prosecuted."

Dr. Aked smiled at the irate farmer.

"But we are not trespassers, my good man," said he.

"What be you then?" demanded the farmer.

"We are Presbyterians, my dear sir," replied Dr. Aked and walked away.

A Losing Game

FREDERICK TOWNSEND MARTIN, who has abandoned society in order to take up social reform, said the other day to a reporter:

"Society itself might undergo a little social reformation. In one respect, though, it has improved. It doesn't play bridge so desperately as it used to.

"A lady at the height of the bridge fever was once discussing the game with me.

"'I didn't know you played,' I said. 'Have you been playing long?'

"'No, not very long,' she answered. 'Only about four check books.'"

Ought He to Kiss Her?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I AM in receipt of the following letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax—I am engaged to a young woman and like her very much. Ought I to kiss her?

B. H."

Ought he to kiss her?

What did you do when she accepted your offer of marriage? Did you, in that moment of supreme joy, say "Thank you!" and follow your expression of gratitude with your political platform?

Is there a girl so ignorant of her rights that she would STAY engaged to such a man?

In story and in play, a girl, with a dream of her own future locked in her heart, watches with consuming interest the love plot unfold. When the climax is reached, and the man clasps the girl in that embrace which the great Dickens called a "fraternal rolling," she gives a sigh of content.

It is just as it should be. It is just as it will be with her when her lover comes along.

You were the realization of one girl's dreams. You told her you loved her. Evidently she confessed her love for you, or there would be no engagement.

So far, so good. Then what did you do? You dealt a blow to her dreams, her hopes, her ideals. You behaved as indifferently as if you were a storekeeper selling a customer a mackerel.

You had won her love and her hand in marriage. If there was any happiness in your soul at that moment, you carefully suppressed it.

My dear young man, that girl is one in ten thousand. If she were like the loving and lovable nine hundred and ninety-nine, the girls who make courtship and marriage worth while, she would have given you the coat there and then.

Hugged the Hydrant

She would have gone out and hugged the nearest ice-bound hydrant and found it comforting in comparison.

She wouldn't have stayed engaged to you five minutes.

If, in your extreme desire to know your rights in such a matter, you want authority, turn to that greatest of all monitors, the Bible.

Solomon, the man of many wives and much wisdom, knew. In the second verse of the first Song of Solomon he sings:

"Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth, for his love is better than wine."

In the second verse of the fourteenth chapter of Peter there is further advice to lovers:

"Salute one another with a kiss of love."

Still you hesitate. And with so much lost time to make up!

My dear young man, you have work ahead of you. Kiss her, and kiss her quick, and take care that your kisses be of the right temperature, for such matters require delicate adjustment. Don't let it be a kiss "upon her forehead like a thawdrop from a stone porch."

Poor girl! If she shares the fate of all women, that is the kind she will get after marriage. For it is then that you men begin to say, with Swift, "Lord! I wonder what fool it was who first invented kissing!"

Relic of Barbarism

True, kissing is a relic of barbarism. When our savage ancestors met they showed their teeth and sprang at each other, and this bite has traveled down the years, toothed up, refined and glorified till it has become a symbol of great love.

They founded better than they knew when they showed their teeth and sprang at each other. They founded a supreme joy that that little girl of yours is missing.

Ought you to kiss her? Ought you to give her the one great joy of an engagement?

Ought a girl who is engaged have her rights?

The world agreed when it was still young and merry that she should. It is the one rule of the ages that is never violated.

Said Pickwick: "When you are looking at a pair of the most delicious lips in the world, and see them gently break into a roguish smile—if you are very near them, and nobody else is by—you cannot better testify your admiration of their beautiful form and color than by kissing them at once."

And if there is an engagement, do it often!

Costly Veils and Vestments

WHEN, early in 1911, the baby Lord Milton, the heir to an income of $1,500,000 a year—if rumor speaks true—was christened, among other infantile habiliments the heir of the Fitzwilliams was wrapped in a veil, or scarf, which belonged to William the Conqueror. It was given by him as a species of Guillaume Cross to an ancestor of the family for conspicuous bravery at the Battle of Hastings.

Every male member of the house is in turn wrapped in the famous veil. The charming custom of using the bridal veil of the child's mother, so frequently adopted in distinguished families, is not followed in this family, saving perhaps in the case of baby girls who first see the light at the largest private residence in the kingdom, Wentworth Woodhouse, near Rotherham, Yorkshire, where a large proportion of the Fitzwilliam acres—115,000 in number—are situated.

When Miss Sheets married the Due de Chaulnes early in 1908, the veil she wore, and was almost lost in, of Brussels point d'aiguille, was worn in the first place by Princess Stephanie, daughter of the late King of the Belgians, on the occasion of her marriage to the Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria. To be married in a royal veil is a distinction that does not often fall to the lot of a commoner, for the simple but sufficient reason that it is very unusual for the same to leave the possession of their original owners, saving in the case of presentation to the Church.

When, a few years ago, a certain Colonel Noyes died suddenly on his honeymoon, the gentleman widow sent her bridal robes to the nuns of St. Katherine's Convent, Bloomsbury, to be converted into vestments for the Church of St. John's, Norwich. For many months four skilled embroiderers were engaged on the work, and in due course they evolved from the materials sent a magnificent frontal eight foot in length and four feet in depth, the design including a number of figures, one of which, a mediaeval knight, bore the features of Colonel Noyes, whose arms and motto were also included in the scheme.

Mrs. Noys is not the only widow who has presented her wedding dress to the church to be converted into vestments. She had a very illustrious precedent in the Empress Eugenie, who had her wedding robes converted into white vestments, which are used on the occasion of the great festivals at the Church and Abbey of St. Michael, Farnborough. The piety of the Empress has also caused her to embroider the chasuble of red watered silk for the same order of brothers, while the magnificent purple vestments they sometimes don originally formed the famous pall which covered the late Emperor's coffin.

TEXAS is a land of many surprises.

Some of the events that happen there would stagger humanity.

For instance, a few weeks ago a stranger was traveling through the State, and was somewhat puzzled to see what he took to be a tall chimney rising upon the monotonous surface of the prairie, without the "trimmings" that usually accompany any such domestic hone?

"And may I ask what that chimney's for?" he queried, turning to a native. "Surely no one is going to build a factory in this desolate hone?"

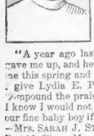
"Wall, stranger," came his reply, "you see, we get some awful wet weather here. That's ole Joe Miller's well. A cyclone turned her upside down and inside out as well."

The stranger resumed his weary, watchful way.

DOCTORS GAVE HER UP

Mrs. Stuart Finally Saved By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Her Story Interesting.

Elmo, Mo.—"I think your Vegetable Compound is wonderful for it has helped me. I had four doctors and they said I had female troubles and a tumor and nothing but an operation would help me. I could not sit still long enough to eat, and could sleep hardly any I was in so much misery with pains in my side and back.



"A year ago last spring my doctor gave me up, and he was surprised to see me this spring and to see my condition. I give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the praise wherever I go for I know I would not be here today or have our fine baby boy if I had not taken it."—Mrs. SARAH J. STUART, R.F.D. No. 2, Box 16, Elmo, Mo.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

We challenge anyone to name even one other medicine that has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Desperate Desmond — The Villain Becomes an Unwilling Sandwichman and Winds Up in the Wrong Shop

Copyright, 1912, by the National News Association

By Hershfield

Blinded by the paste and hampered by the bucket which Claude threw over the wall on Desmond's head, the villain, nevertheless, makes shift to run. Claude's sacrifice of the pot of paste was justified by the way it baffled Desmond of his prey, and again brought the lovers together. In the joy of meeting Claude does not immediately secure Desmond, but the villain can't run far thus hampered.

As Desmond, having shaken off the bucket, runs blindly through the streets he blunders into an exciting political meeting of the Manchu party. The thick paste over the villain's head prevents him from seeing anything, but he hears the hot party speech being delivered by the spellbinder, who seems destined to succeed the highbinder as the main factor in Chinese politics since the revolution began.

In true Western style, the Chinese orator, after likening his candidates to the sun, the moon and the stars for splendor, the lily for purity and the serpent for wisdom, proceeds to scatter handbills bearing the name of his Oriental paragon. "Take these home," he says, "and paste them on the wall as a reminder to vote for the only man who can save the Chinese Republic. Vote for Li Chee and lower cost of living."

Now as Desmond, thickly covered with paste, rushes wildly forward, the handbills fluttering through the air fall lightly upon him, and where they touch they stick. So that the villain is quickly transformed into a remarkably striking sandwich man, whose mad antics would compel any crowd to look at him and read the advertising matter he thus strangely carried around with him. But Desmond continues his rush.

Now doubly blinded by the thick paste and the handbills which are sticking to it, Desmond blunders through the narrow streets. He feels his way to a large door-way, and expecting to find a store thinks that he will soon be relieved of this incubus of paste and paper. But it is no store, as you will see by reading the name over the door. Desmond is about to make a sad blunder.

Sure enough, Desmond has made a fatal mistake. Covered over with posters advertising a Manchu candidate he has entered the headquarters of the opposition revolutionary party, and the members are quick to seize the scoundrel and make him a prisoner just as Claude and Rosamond rush up. The work has been taken off our hero's hands, and on Monday we shall see Desmond's fate.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE STREET, March 2.—Both the Boston and New York markets were irregular as to prices at the close, there being a disposition to take profits on the part of traders who had the chance. The opening was good in both markets and firmness prevailed during most of the sessions.

Steel closed unchanged, as did American Telephone and Union Pacific. Reading, Canadian Pacific and Northern Pacific were a little lower. Among the issues to close higher were N. Y. Central and Southern Pacific. The fluctuations were narrow.

Among the coppers which closed higher were Greene Cananea, Butte Superior, Isle Royale and Calumet and Arizona.

New York Market Opens Strong.

The New York market opened strong, and immediately afterward there were additional gains in a number of important issues without bringing any increased supply into the trading.

Steel common, St. Paul and Southern ranged from ⅜ to ½ higher on initial transactions, and fractional gains were also recorded in New York Central, Amalgamated and Erie. The room continued to fight for a reaction, concentrating bear operations against Reading, which was offered freely as it receded sharply from Friday's closing.

After opening unchanged, Union Pacific shaded fractionally. Pressure in this department failed to influence the balance of the list. Canadian Pacific lost ⅜.

The curb was dull.

Americans Held Well in London.

Securities were irregular in the London market today, there being a decline in consols and a drop in home rails on account of the deadlock in settling the coal strike. American stocks had a good tone and were cheerfully regarded. There was [illegible] in Mexican rails. Foreigners were dull. Oils, West African and tin issues were stronger. The large attendance at the 'change for Saturday indicated how much the strike is affecting the market.

Paris and Berlin bourses were quiet at the close.

Money Rates in Europe.

In London consols closed at ⅛ lower at 77 9-16 for money and 77 13-16 for account.

Bar silver was steady there at 27⅛d. bid, up 1-16d.

Money was quoted at 3@3¼ per cent.; discount bills 3¼; for three months, 3⅜ per cent.

Rio Tintos advanced a total of 1⅞ in two days in London, being ⅝ higher at 72¾ today. This reflects bullish sentiment in Europe as far as copper is concerned.

The weekly Bank of Germany statement shows a decrease of 80,247,000 marks in cash in hand.

HONK! KING AUTO HERE TONIGHT

Honk! Honk!

King Auto is here in all his glory, at Mechanics Building to-night. Promptly at 8 o'clock the doors of that great structure will open and Boston's greatest automobile show will be on.

Auto enthusiasts in large numbers will be on hand to inspect the 1912 models, and a new record for motor shows is expected, both in line of cars and attendance is looked for.

The show, incidentally, it might be stated, is the tenth annual of the Boston Dealers' Association, and will be the biggest and best show in the country.

In number of cars represented it will outstrip anything of the kind so far held in the country.

A hundred cars more are on exhibition than at the Madison Square Garden event, and almost a score more than at the big Chicago show.

Two Separate Exhibits.

So numerous are the entries that it has been found necessary to make a radical departure from the plan heretofore in vogue in this city, by separating the pleasure and commercial vehicles into two separate exhibits.

This week will be devoted exclusively to pleasure vehicles, while next week the commercial cars will have their inning.

The dealers have made preparations for a flood of orders, for the Boston show is noted for the number of sales made during the week. The opening night's business is expected to be brisk, and an unusually large number of sales will undoubtedly be reported.

The following comparison with the Madison Square Garden show and the big Chicago exhibition will indicate the class of the event! At Madison Square there were 147 cars on exhibition. At the Chicago show there were 344 cars, while at the Boston show 363 cars are presented to the public gaze.

Every Inch of Space Taken.

Every inch of the five and one-half acres of floor space has been taken, and the management is still receiving applications for booth room.

To-day workmen will be busily engaged in putting the final finishing touches to the decorations, so that when the time for the opening arrives every detail will have been attended to.

All of the cars are now in place. They are of all colors—gray and white and blue and red and green—and all so highly polished as to have the reflective power of a mirror.

In price they range from the comparatively inexpensive little runabout, built for two, to the large, roomy, powerful racing type, built for the man with an unlimited purse.

No pains or expense have been spared by Chester I. Campbell, manager of the show, to give it a brilliant setting. The decorations are of the most lavish nature.

$30,000 for Decorations.

A force of decorators several hundred in number have been at work all week transforming the Mechanics Building into a veritable beauty spot.

The Boston Auto Show has always been noted for the beauty of its decorations, and this year the high standard of former years has been maintained.

"Old English garden fete" is the keynote of the decorations in Exhibition Hall. There are real box-hedges everywhere, all neatly trimmed. Thousands of climbing rose vines enhance the green of the hedges. The decorations are so profuse that none of the walls or ceilings of the structure are visible.

Grand Hall has undergone a complete transformation. Overhead is hung a canopy presenting a painted sky effect, containing more than 25,000 feet of canvas.

Strands of vari-colored lights have been used to great advantage, and present a brilliant and artistic background. All balconies have been covered with gilded panels, azure blue and white ceilings and side wall draperies and artistic signs.

The decorations, it is estimated, cost in the vicinity of $30,000, while the entire expense of putting on the show will exceed $100,000.

NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR IT!

With every copy of Sunday's AMERICAN will be given FREE the new once-a-month Magazine Section, 28 pages of delightful things, exquisitely printed and illustrated, firmly bound in wirestitched colored covers.

State Street News

The copper metal market was busy yesterday, several millions pounds of electrolytic being sold at 14½ cents a pound and Michigan brands brought 14⅝. The brisk demand and price firmness gave color to the belief that 15 cent copper might be looked for soon. All authorities are not agreed on this, however. The reports concerning the visible supply in Europe had a sustaining influence in the market. Interest in the forthcoming report of the Copper Producers' statement is very keen. How much of a decrease it will show is being generally discussed. February production figures of some companies may help indicate what is to be expected. Anaconda production for the month is estimated at 27,000,000 pounds. Its January production was 25,900,000. The Copper Range Consolidated produced 5,254,000 pounds last month and 5,372,000 pounds in January. The Franklin output was 220,000 pounds of mineral. The Wolverine production in February was 1,006,500 pounds and in the first month of the year 1,000,000. Total stocks in the United States on January 31 last amounted to only 66,000,000. It is said that 35,000,000 pounds represented all the electrolytic on hand and that of this amount the United Metals Selling Co., which is owned by Amalgamated, had controlled 60 per cent.

It is said that gold shipments from this country to South America, particularly Argentina, has only just begun. There is a premium of 127 per cent. in the latter country which has no gold currency, so that the yellow metal is always at a premium there. At present the rate of exchange and other charges are such as to allow a small profit to bankers willing to engage in gold transactions. Argentina has raised the greatest corn crop in her history.

A New York banker says London is practically advancing the money for the Argentine gold transactions. Bankers here are either drawing long or demand drafts on that city. These drafts are sold here and cash received is taken to the Sub-Treasury or Assay Office and exchanged for gold coin or bars. The gold is then put aboard a steamer sailing for South America and delivered in Argentina in about three weeks. The money borrowed from London is then paid with commercial bills purchased at Argentina.

The strength of General Electric was largely attributed to the rumor in Wall street that the company has added between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 to its surplus within a year and there is reason to hope for a big dividend distribution. This corporation is understood to have done a large and profitable business of late. An important upward movement in American Telephone is also being forecasted by certain houses. The price tendency of these and some other specialties is very encouraging to bullish sentiment.

The relative position of the Standard and Morgan Oil groups in the stock market is being discussed. Opinions differ very much. "According to some," says the New York Herald, the former is bullish on the Coppers and St. Paul, the latter on Steel and the so-called Morgan roads. Analysis of the reports of the large banks controlled by these two groups to the Controller of the Currency would indicate that the Standard Oil element has been selling stocks and the Morgan group buying.

BOSTON HEARS MASSENET OPERA

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Massenet's "Werther" was sung for the first time in Boston last night at the Opera. Like all productions here, it was given a magnificent scenic dress, and was performed after weeks of careful preparation. The audience was not a large one.

"Werther" is about twenty years old, but it was not until two years ago that it reached the United States, when it was sung at the Metropolitan with moderate success.

Massenet was inspired by Goethe's romance, "The Sorrows of Werther," and the librettists have made a creditable operatic arrangement. It is set to music in the most elegant manner of Massenet; music which is generous, smooth, easily flowing, but without any striking or fascinating melodies.

It is typical of modern French music, trifling and yet pretentious, extremely artistic but without genius.

With a cast of French singers of the first rank it would be very pleasant, no doubt, and as given last night it was sufficiently attractive, but it must be admitted that it falls below the standard set by other productions at the Boston Opera.

For one thing, Maria Gay as Charlotte is an incongruous figure. An excellent artist in Italian opera, Gay is at a loss when confronted by Massenet music. She does not know how to make mountains out of musical molehills. For a woman of bountiful proportions she made a pleasing picture as Charlotte, and she strove nobly for that French art of repression which is foreign to her, both vocally and temperamentally.

Clement was artistic to look at as Werther and good to hear except when he reached a high note. His high notes are not nice, and a tenor without high tones is like a man without teeth at a beefsteak supper.

Madeleine D'Olige was pretty and graceful as Sophie, the young sister of Charlotte, and used her parlor soprano very well. Riddez, as Albert, the more or less happy husband of Charlotte, sang with appreciation of the music and good tone. Rothier, as Le Baili, also knows his Massenet.

Several baritones, basses and tenors assumed small parts without attracting much attention.

The honors of the performance go to Caplet, who conducted tastefully a score which depends greatly upon good conducting.

A New Kind of Brutality and a New Depth of Selfishness and Cruelty Have Been Revealed In the Strike at Lawrence

That Strike Disgraces All of Those Who Organized the Peculiarly Shameless Opposition to the Workingmen, Those THAT FOUGHT WOMEN AND CHILDREN. The Report of a Settlement Is Welcome. But It Will Not Blot Out From Memory the Brutality of Which the Employers Were Guilty

From Lawrence comes news that "The end of the strike is in sight," because the owners of the mills have consented to give their workers an increase of 5 per cent.

This increase is utterly inadequate. It is for the workers, however, to say whether they will accept it.

It is for the nation at large to express its opinion and its absolute contempt of the conditions which the employers in Lawrence have imposed upon their workers, and the shameful and cowardly efforts that were made to keep the men in submission by attacking the women and children.

The story of the strike, from beginning to end, is of the worst kind of employer and the most brutal kind of labor oppression.

Men who own mills had imported thousands of foreigners, hoping that they would keep down the wages through their ignorance and their urgent needs.

And the wages were as low as wages could be made. It is almost impossible to believe how little these miserable working people were compelled to accept in return for a hard week's work.

Then came the enactment of legislation limiting the number of hours for an employe in one week in Massachusetts.

The legislation was suggested, passed and put into effect—AND A GREAT MAJORITY OF THE FOREIGN WORKMEN IN LAWRENCE WERE IGNORANT OF THE WHOLE MATTER.

This reduction in the hours of labor was not excessive. It still left the working hours longer than they should be.

There was, however, in the beginning something to be said on behalf of the employers. They were competing in their industry with mills in the South employing child labor and adult labor, working much longer hours than the law would let children and grown men work in Massachusetts.

It was not easy for Northerners competing with the workers of the South.

But the employers, instead of treating the matter as decent men should have treated it, concentrated their power and their heartless cynicism in an effort to beat down the working men brutally and without legislation.

As soon as the law was passed reducing the number of hours that a man should work, the pay of the employes was cut down in proportion—and without any warning or legislation.

Foreigners, unable to read our language, unable to understand legislation, the very foreigners that had been imported by these employers purposely to cut down the rate of pay, suddenly found on payday, without knowing WHY, that their week's pay, already too small for decent living, had been cut to a lower figure.

Of course they struck; of course they refused to starve patiently—WHAT ELSE COULD THEY DO?

Since the twelfth of January this strike has continued, until now there is talk of a compromise by an inadequate concession on the part of the employers.

To the disgrace of the latter and to the disgrace of the authorities in Lawrence involved in the conduct of the strike, it must be said that the most cowardly and contemptible methods have been used in the effort to break down the workers, destroy their courage and compel them to yield.

Vilest of all is the attempt to prevent the mothers and fathers from sending their children away to those who would care for them and keep them.

On a certain day a trade paper, representing the interests of the employers, came out with the announcement that the strike would soon end BECAUSE THE PEOPLE ARE FEELING THE PRESSURE OF POVERTY. THERE WAS NO FOOD IN THE HOUSES FOR THE CHILDREN, AND THE WORKERS WOULD HAVE TO GIVE IN. Then a number of children were sent to other cities, where they were cared for and fed by workmen able to help the child of a fellow-workman on strike.

And then an effort was made, just after it was felt that the workers would give in, to send away another lot of children, that they might be fed and cared for while the strike should last. On this occasion, the character of the employers and the stupidity of officials representing the interests of capital were made clear. With hypocritical protestations to the effect that the city would care for the children, the children were taken from their parents and they were driven like a herd of swine to the poor farm. The parents were told by martinets that they could not dispose of their children as they pleased. And these gentlemen, these idiots that disgraced the lowest form of common sense, these fools that the authorities should relieve without loss of time and apologize to the workers in relieving, presumed to take charge of the children of these working people and send them in a herd to the poor farm.

Nothing more outrageous has been heard of in all the history of the struggles between workmen and their employers in this or in any other country.

It was bad enough for these workers to be ground down to the point where they had no food for their children.

It was pitiful enough to see them struggling against odds to better their miserable condition.

And it was bad enough to see those hundreds of children, hand-in-hand, leaving their mothers' and fathers' homes and going to be fed by men in other towns.

It was brutal and unbelievable to see the representatives of LAW beating the mothers, driving them back, seizing and frightening the children and, in the name of "local pride," sending these poor children to the poor farm.

Every child thus treated and every parent thus treated should have recourse at law and receive substantial damages.

Things have come to a pretty pass in this country if fathers and mothers can be told, as they were told, practically in plain words, at Lawrence:

"You can't send your children away to be fed. We want you to keep the children here. We represent the interests of the mill owners. And these mill owners depend upon the hunger and need of your children to compel you to give in."

That is what happened at Lawrence. That is what the people resent.

"Yes, William, Theodore's hat is in the ring, and the rest of his costume is appropriately arranged, but somehow he does not look happy. Ah, how true are the words of the Persian poet, Hafiz Vi Oolah, who said:

"The guy what tries to queer a friend, when that friend wants to run.
Will feel some day, youse can depend, ashamed of what he done!"

Something for Nothing? It Can't Be Done

And Get Rich Quick? Almost Impossible, Especially Since the Federal Authorities Began Getting After Those Who Use the Mails to Defraud. But—BUT—Here Are a Few Words About Much for Little, and NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR IT!

The Boston Sunday AMERICAN of tomorrow—with the Sunday AMERICAN Monthly Magazine—will be the most remarkable offering ever put out by a Sunday newspaper in New England.

See the names of the famous contributors!

George Bernard Shaw	Mme. Lina Cavalieri
Charles Dana Gibson	Philip Boileau

T. E. Powers

Consider what they stand for! You can remember when a special contribution by any one of them was big enough to make an unusually attractive newspaper. But all of these—and many more—in the SAME newspaper!

Novelists, short-story writers, artists, great cartoonists, all, as Mr. Tody Hamilton might put it, under one tent! And no extra charge for it! Everywhere in New England and in Eastern Canada and the Maritime Provinces the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow—with the Sunday AMERICAN Monthly Magazine—will cost no more than the Sunday AMERICAN cost last Sunday.

GEORGE ADE, the celebrated author of "Fables in Slang," tells us about the "Hired Hand who felt that he was cut out to be Somebody. Among the Agriculturists he was said to be too dash-burned Toney because he wore gloves when he Toiled and on Sundays put on a slew of Agony, with sheet-iron Shoes pointed at the End and a neat Derby purchased in Terry Hut."

PHILIP BOILEAU, one of the most gifted of American illustrators, has drawn the remarkably pretty Unistatian who decorates the front cover.

NELL BRINKLEY, who now has many imitators, but is still without an equal, continues to interest and delight with "The Adventures of Cupid." The newest picture is awfully sweet, but the Little Chap is sick abed. (You'd be sick abed in a minute, if you could have his nurses! Wait until you see them!)

MME. LINA CAVALIERI, who has demonstrated to all the world her love for her own baby, contributes a page, duly illustrated, on "The Care of the Child." Mme. Cavalieri is the most famous living beauty.

GEORGE RANDOLPH CHESTER, known the wide world over as the creator of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," tells in an admirable short story—rather a long short-story, we should say, but one cannot get too much "Chester"—about a Bishop who was just where he ought to have been when he was very much needed. Mr. Chester calls his story "While It Rained." You will call it a corking good yarn.

DOROTHY DIX answers "Susan B.," who has written in to ask how she shall bring a Certain Party to the asking point. Miss Dix tells all the girls—this being Leap Year—"How to Propose."

SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE has written for the magazine section another of his thrilling detective mysteries, "Saved by Sherlock Holmes."

JAMES MONTGOMERY FLAGG, whose wonderfully up-to-date drawings are the talk of the United States and Canada, is seen at his best in a dramatic picture called "The Dangerous Risk a Desperate Wife Took."

MONTAGUE GLASS—You know, the "Potash and Perlmutter" fellow—holds his own in most distinguished company with a bit of metropolitan life called "Mr. Lo Pinto," being an appreciation by Mr. Lo Pinto's former bookkeeper.

ELINOR GLYN is represented by another large instalment of the wonderful serial called "Why!" in which we find to our great delight that the Countess Zara is coming down from her high horse, as it were, and that things begin to look a little better for her new husband, the twenty-fourth Baron of Wrayth.

CHARLES DANA GIBSON is also on the program. The Gibson picture illustrates an incident in Robert W. Chambers' newest story, "The Turning Point."

LADY DUFF-GORDON, the famous "Lucile" of London, Paris and New York, writes about "Spring Novelties in Fashions," including the "Jersey" dress, an afternoon gown, and a charming "poke" hat. Illustrated? Certainly!

ELBERT HUBBARD takes for his subject "Don't Knock Opportunity." "Everybody is punk at times," says the Sage of Aurora. "I am, anyway. The desirable thing is not to let the mood become chronic. Then, when the pivotal point comes, spread your wings and aviate."

FREDERIC OPPER, the funniest of all cartoonists, unless you except Mr. Thomas E. Powers, boxes up Happy Hooligan, Gloomy Gus and Montmorency and ships them back to the United States from England; the Oil of Hooligan having refused to come across. And who do you suppose is on the same ship? No! Yes! Alphonse and Gaston!

MR. THOMAS E. POWERS (see above) has another dream about what they'll soon be doing "In the Chinese Republic."

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, who can always be depended upon to be different, has an illustrated something called "How I Would Make War," and will you listen to him! "I should kill all the women less than fifty years old, taking care not to shed a drop of masculine blood without necessity!" Isn't he the ogre? Isn't he the monster? And he claims to be an Irishman!

PENRHYN STANLAWS has drawn the pictures to illustrate "What's Worth While," written by Carolyn Wells.

MABEL HERBERT URNER continues the marvelous series of domestic narratives called "Married Life the Third Year."

CAROLYN WELLS talks about dining out. She says—we don't quite make out what she's driving at—that a dinner table where a woman is dining with a man is much more "worth while" than two women dining alone.
